AFTERMATH: Everything went according to plan. The Russian forces, who had been in constant battle for several weeks, were unable to stop a full-strength Panzer Division. The 4th Cavalry corps was almost completely eliminated, but their sacrifice would not be in vain however. It took a couple of days to break through the defences, days when reinforcements could be brought forward. Ultimately, the Germans would be stopped short of their target. von Manstein would never reach Stalingrad.
FRONTAL ATTACK!

ASL SCENARIO LINCON 89:1

TOLVAJÄRVI, FINLAND, 13 December 1939: The advance of the 139th Rifle Division was halted east of the lake Tolvajärvi; it was time for the Finns to take the initiative. On the 12th, Lt. Colonel Pajari, CO of the 16th Infantry Regiment, had begun his double pincer movement north of the lake and over the southern part of the lake. But the Russians had begun their own flanking maneuver to the north, and checked the advance over the ice in the south. Pajari then decided on a bold frontal attack over the ice of the frozen lake instead.

BOARD CONFIGURATION:

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Finnish player must have 3 good-order squads (or equivalents) adjacent to the 32Y1-32Q7 road.

Enter on turn 2 along the North map edge East of the stream.

SPECIAL RULES:

1. EC are Snow, with no wind at start. Extreme Winter (E3.74) and Deep Snow (E3.73) is in effect. Roads East of the lake are plowed.
2. The board 7 river is the lake Tolvajärvi. No islands exist, treat those hexes as frozen lake (B21.6).
3. Finnish Troops are ski-equipped (E4) and have Winter Camouflage (E3.712)
4. The Finnish 9-1 leader is previously wounded, which only effect is that he must add the +1 drm on any Wound Severity DR (A17.11). He must also lead the attack over the lake, i.e. he may not prep fire on the first Player Turn.

AFTERMATH: The Finnish attack was spearheaded by a company led by a wounded lieutenant. When the fight was over only eight men were still fit for fight. But the attack led to a great victory for the Finns - the total annihilation of Russian forces in the Tolvajärvi area. Ten days later the fresh 75th and the 139th division had been virtually destroyed by seven Finnish battalions in continuous fighting along the Tolvajärvi–Ägljärvi road. Captured equipment included 60 tanks, 30 field guns and lots of small arms and ammunition, things desperately needed in the ill-equipped Finnish army.
PARIS FIGHTS!

ASL SCENARIO LINCON 89:2

PARIS, FRANCE, 19 August 1944: The Tricolor flew over Paris again, after four years of occupation. The FFI, Forces Françaises de l'Intérieur, had struck in the morning of the 19th in an effort to liberate the French capital. At the Policeprefecture the policemen managed to repulse the first German reaction. Some trucks with infantry were set on fire with molotov cocktails, and the infantry shot down while bailing out. But the Germans came back at 3.30, this time with panzers in support.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player must control building Z3 at game end.

4. The Germans have no PF capability.
5. The French may secretly record the units possessing the MMGs. Place the MMGs onboard after the owner becomes a known enemy unit.

AFTERMATH: The panzers initially caused panic among the poorly equipped policemen, but they rallied. In the cellar Vichy champagne was poured on the floor to make bottles available for molotov cocktails. The position held until five, when the fighting diminished for the night. During the night the Swedish Consul General, Raoul Nordling, negotiated a cease-fire between General Dietrich von Choltitz and the FFI to prevent a certain bloodbath on the following day. This wrecked Hitler's plans for the destruction of Paris.

AFTERMATH: The Germans fought their way forward doggedly, and managed to drive a wedge between two companies of the Batalion de Marche. There was a whirl of ugly hand-to-hand fighting; one German soldier was shot down only a few yards from a 75. For a moment it seemed as if the African troops would crumble under the tremendous pressure. When collapse seemed inevitable, there was a roar and clatter from the rear as one of the Legions Etrangere carrier sections rushed up. The legionnaires were relatively fresh, and they plugged the gap, forcing back the enemy infantry.

At dawn though, point 186 had fallen, giving the Germans control of the high ground inside the perimeter. The French had to break out which they did the following night, after another day of heavy fighting.
ASSAULT AT SOLA

ASL SCENARIO LINCON 89:4

SOLA AIRFIELD, SW OF STAVANGER, NORWAY, 9 April 1940: The airfield at Sola was important to the Germans during Wese-ribung. They had to secure it as a forward base to support and protect the naval forces shipping troops and equipment to Norway and to challenge the British control of the North Sea. Relying on surprise and skill they sent only light airborne forces, one company of para-troopers.

BOARD CONFIGURATION:

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German wins at game end if there are no manned functioning Norwegian AA-guns at all, and no good order Norwegian Squads/HS adjacent to any Runway hex.

AFTERMATH: The airfield was defended by some one hundred men with light AA-guns and machineguns. There were also some bombers left on the ground but most had taken off earlier. The attack began with four fighters strafing the ground, destroying one Norwegian aircraft, without any losses from the AA-fire. The other bombers managed to take off and get away. Then the Junkers arrived and dropped their living cargo of paratroopers. The Germans took some casualties in the drop from AA-fire, but regrouped quickly and attacked. A Norwegian MG-team caused the attackers some additional losses, but resistance was quickly overcome and the airfield secured. A while later two battalions of infantry landed on the cleared airfield, and the field was readied to recieve Luftwaffe airmits.
