Special, special thanks to ZevTheWolf for the Infantry Captain template, looking over the stablocks, and in general being an excellent DM collaborator.
As my campaign goes towards 10+, I feel a lack of NPCs geared towards higher levels campaigns. Mind you, legendary NPCs should be legendary, every bit as much so as beholders, ancient dragons, and the like. I made this compilation from a desire to move beyond DGScott’s Versatile NPCs and the hole it helped fill in the existing content. I made this content from a thematic perspective because that’s how I view my world. I see military, monastic, dark arts, urban, seafaring, these different areas that interact with each other. This compilation includes many NPCs, and I’ll attempt to categorize and index them in an easily usable way.

This supplement considers the NPC templates set out in the Monster’s Manual, Volo’s Guide to Monster’s, and 35 Versatile NPCs by /u/DGScott.

Note About Legendary NPCs: As of this time, I have not added legendary resistances and actions to even the higher level NPCs in this document (a handful do have legendary resistances). Appendix B on page 43 outlines my thoughts on Legendary Actions and gives some examples of those from the MM.

Arcane

Existing sources have covered clerics, warlocks, wizards, and even bards, but templates have seemed to actively avoid sorcerers. I dealt with sorcery points the way WotC dealt with Ki points when it comes to NPCs monks, I just ignored them. Instead, each sorcerer has a metamagic that is either always active or useable a certain number of times a day.

Ranged NPCs

Archer NPCs to pad out your NPCs. Scout (CR 1/4), Archer (CR 3), and Seasoned Hunter (CR 3) have some bases covered, but I wanted to get those other levels. Sharpshooter, Sniper, and Legendary Archer have the sharpshooter feat, making them high-damage dealing ranged opponents. Legendary Archer and Sniper should both be relatively nasty enemies at long range.

Skulker. The archer can try to hide when it is lightly obscured from the creature from which you are hiding. When archer is hidden from a creature and misses it with a ranged weapon attack, making the attack doesn’t reveal its position. Dim light doesn’t impose disadvantage on archer’s Wisdom (Perception) checks relying on sight.

Longbow, Dead-eye Shot Ranged Weapon Attack: +3 to hit, range 600 ft., one target. Hit: 19 (1d8 + 15) piercing damage.

The sniper and other skulkers prefer to fight from a distance. They will orchestrate with their allies to make sure that they are firing with advantage as often as possible. They will stay as far away from their enemies as possible, using their long range and stealthy abilities to harass their foes, while not the most deadly in a single strike, a lone sniper can often route a much larger force.

In lands contested with orcs, ogres, gnolls and other dangerous humanoids, snipers make excellent hunters, staying well out of range of larger and more deadly opponents.
Dark Arts NPCs

Some NPCs, regardless of alignment, choose to mess with the dark arts. The following are humanoids who have dabbled with or have a connection with the dark arts. The Vermin Lord, specifically, is interesting because it is druidic in nature. The others have suffered from corruption or dabble in the dark arts in one way or another.

- Fire Bolt. Ranged Spell Attack: +10 to hit, range 120 ft., one target. Hit: 16 (3d10) fire damage.

Demonologists aren’t always evil and may even be trying to permanently banish demons and devils from the prime material plane. Regardless of their goals, demonologists tread a dangerous path. They mess with dark powers beyond the understanding of mortals. Sometimes their meddling can lead to situations in and around the places they practice their arts.

In the process of transforming into a physical incarnation of a demon on the prime material plane, transforming humanoids resemble their race but with long, vicious claws, barbed teeth, and a set of underdeveloped demon wings springing from their back.

Once a corrupted humanoid, these pour lost souls have taken the next step in their devolution. Only the magic of a greater restoration or wish spell can revert the changes.
Espionage

For some options beyond Spy (CR 1), Master Thief (CR 5) and Assassin (CR 8). These statblocks offer some lower, medium, and higher-level options for rogue-based statblocks. I made sure they all have cunning action, but not necessarily all of the other rogue features.

As an informant will readily remind anyone who thinks other, informants are not active agents. They are typically just shady people who work with spies, the local guards, the local thieves’ guild, or whoever will pay them the right coin. In a scrape, something very valuable has to be on the line for an informant to stick around a fight. They are much more likely to flee as quickly as possible.

Despite a lack of bravery, informants can be valuable friends and contacts. They typically know the word on the street and have several black market contacts. However, the average adventurer is cautioned not to trust informants any more than necessary.

- Cantrips (at will): light, spare the dying

- 2nd level (2 slots): gentle repose, lesser restoration

Actions

- Mace. Melee Attack: +4 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 6 (1d8 + 2) bludgeoning damage.

A curate is a normal cleric, but a little different from a priest. A curate is not a leader but a follower. Well-behaved curates do paperwork, heal the sick, bash undead with their maces, and lay the dead to rest. A curate might be in charge of 1d6 acolytes at any time, and probably reports to a priest or another higher ranking church official.

This benefit lasts until the end of the turn. If the martyr expends a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the extra damage increases by 1d6 for each level above 1st.

Spellcasting. The martyr is a 7th-level spellcaster. Its spellcasting ability is Wisdom (spell save DC 15, +7 to hit with spell attacks). The martyr has the following spells prepared:

- Cantrips (at will): light, spare the dying
- 1st level (4 slots): healing word, cure wounds, sanctuary, guiding bolt, bless
- 2nd level (3 slots): gentle repose, lesser restoration, aid

Whether through a specific set of circumstances, random chance, or being called by their deity directly, the martyr sees their own life as forfeit. Their only purpose in life is to fight the good fight and help others, with little to no regard for their own health and well-being.

A martyr will lead the fight in the battlefield, throw themselves headlong into a dungeon, or stand up to traveling adventurers who come into town and throw their weight around. Nothing pisses off a martyr like a traveling barbarian pushing around the townsfolk and being an ass.

While not masters of the battlefield, medics are the unsung heroes of wars. Braving the dangerous and chaotic environment of wars, medics go into the thick of it to lend aid to their allies. Some medics are members of the army, some are hired from local towns and hamlets, others are members of religious orders and sects who believe it is their duty to help others.

In addition to healing the wounded, medics might also have other job functions as well such as caring for the wounded, stabilizing the unconscious, disposing of bodies, preparing healing ointments for scouting groups, or even just overseeing the overall health of the officers and commanders.

Set Versus Charge. As a bonus action, the pikeman chooses a creature it can see that is at least 20 feet away from it. If that creature moves within its pike's reach on its next turn, the pikeman can make a pike melee attack against it as a reaction. If the attack hits, the target takes an extra 1d10 slashing damage. The pikeman can't use this ability if the creature used the Disengage action before moving.

Actions

Multiattack. Pikeman makes two melee weapon attacks.

Pike. Melee Weapon Attack: +4 to hit, reach 10 ft., one target. Hit: 7 (1d8 + 2) slashing damage.

Light Crossbow. Ranged Weapon Attack: +3 to hit, range 80/320 ft., one target. Hit: 5 (1d8 + 1) piercing damage.

Coming from a long tradition of anti-cavalry units, pikemen are important units in mass warfare. In other situations, like underground cities and dungeons, pikemen can be useful because they can attack with melee from behind the first line of soldiers.

On the open battlefield, pikemen watch their surroundings closely, being ever-ready to be charged. After all, without shields the pikeman’s best defense is a good offense.

Actions

Shortsword. Melee Weapon Attack: +4 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 6 (1d6 + 1) piercing damage.

Alchemist’s Fire. Ranged Weapon Attack: +4 to hit, range 20 ft., one target. Hit: 2 (1d4) fire damage, the target continues to take damage every turn until it spends an action to make a DC 10 Dexterity check to extinguish the flames.

Rig to Blow (Recharge 5-6) The sapper rigs together several vials of alchemist fire combined with explosive charges. The sapper sets the bundle down in a square adjacent to it. At the end of the sapper’s turn (but after any legendary actions are resolved), the bomb explodes in a 10-foot radius. All creatures in that radius must make a DC 12 Dexterity check or take 14 (6d4) fire damage, taking half on a successful save. The creatures continue to take 5 (2d4) fire damage at the start of each of their turns. A creature can end this damage by using its action to make a DC 12 Dexterity check to extinguish the flames.

The average sapper often looks more like a human-sized piece of walking coal than a soldier. Covered in ash and soot from whatever activity they have most recently been engaged in, most members of an army will avoid these crazy individuals whenever possible.

Less common than other units, sapper are not alchemists, but more like war-time engineers who have learned how to use alchemist’s fire and other alchemical components to hurt the enemy. Often being covered in scars and burns and commonly missing fingers, sappers can make a difference in sieges with their knowledge of how to demolish enemy buildings and siege weapons.

Brute. A melee weapon deals one extra die of its damage when the infantry hits with it (included in the attack).

Reckless. At the start of its turn, the infantry can gain advantage on all melee weapon attack rolls during that turn, but attack rolls against it have advantage until the start of its next turn.

Actions

Multiattack. The infantry makes two weapon attacks.

Battleaxe. Melee Weapon Attack: +6 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 16 (2d10 + 4) slashing damage.

Javelin Ranged Weapon Attack: +6 to hit, range 20/60 ft., one target. Hit: 7 (1d6 + 4) piercing damage.

Making up for a lack of intelligence and social graces with pure ferocity, savage infantry often come from barbarian tribes, or maybe just brutes in the normal infantry whose bloodlust and savagery has served them well over the years.

Surviving through a combination of luck and brute force, these crazy warriors will often break through the front lines to draw first blood whenever possible. More common in mercenary contingents and outlander armies, these fierce warriors can be found in any army.

When the approaching orc army thinks that humans and other humanoids are cowardly creatures who hide behind their armor, shields, and ranged weapons, the savage infantry are there to prove them wrong.

Challenge: 17 (18,000 XP)

Cunning Actions: The master can take the Dodge, Disengage, or Dash action as a bonus action on their turn. If the master takes the dash action, it’s jump distance is tripled (42 feet).

Ki-Empowered Strikes: The master’s unarmed strikes count as magical for the purposes of overcoming resistance and immunity to nonmagical attacks and damage.

Quivering Palm (3/day): The master has the ability to set up lethal vibrations in someone’s body. When the master hits a creature with an unarmed strike, it starts these imperceptible vibrations, which last for 20 days.

If the master uses their action to end the vibrations and the target is on the same plane of existence, the creature must make a DC 18 Constitution saving throw or it is reduced to 0 hit points.

If it succeeds, it takes 55 (10d10) necrotic damage. Only one creature can be affected at a time. The master can choose to end the vibrations harmlessly without using an action.

Tranquility: The master enters a special meditation that surrounds them with an aura of peace. At the end of a long rest, they gain the effect of a sanctuary spell that lasts until the start of their next long rest (the spell can end early as normal). The saving throw DC for the spell equals 18.

Unarmed Strike: Melee Weapon Attack: +12 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 11 (1d10 + 6) bludgeoning damage. If the target is a creature, the master can choose one of the following additional effects:
• The target must succeed on a DC 18 Strength saving throw or drop one item it is holding (master’s choice).
• The target must succeed on a DC 18 Dexterity saving throw or be knocked prone.
• The target must succeed on a DC 18 Constitution saving throw or be stunned until the end of the master’s next turn.

Dart: Ranged Weapon Attack: +12 to hit, range 20/60 ft., one target. Hit: 8 (1d4 + 6) piercing damage.

Reactions
Deflect Missiles: The master can use its reaction to deflect or catch missiles when hit by ranged attacks. The damage of the attack is reduced by 11 (1d10 + 6).

The grand master has earned his or her title because it is the grand master. Often coming around only once in several generations, the grand master has learned to transcend their fleshly prison, achieving full enlightenment.

Aside from a plethora of powerful abilities and effects, grand masters are teachers and mirrors of truth and discovery. Instead of being sources of knowledge, the grand master is there to guide their students to help discover their own truths and knowledge, just as their teachers did for them.

The grand master doesn’t solve problems, they empower their students to solve problems for themselves.

Challenge 8 (3,900 XP)

Cunning Actions. The fist can take the Dodge, Disengage, or Dash action as a bonus action on their turn. If the fist takes the dash action, it’s jump distance is tripled (30 feet).

Ki-Empowered Strikes. The fist’s unarmed strikes count as magical for the purposes of overcoming resistance and immunity to nonmagical attacks and damage.

Timeless Body. The fist’s ki sustains them so that they suffer none of the frailty of old age and can’t be aged magically. They can still die of old age, however. In addition, they no longer need food or water.

Unarmored Defense. The fist’s AC equals 10 + Dexterity modifier + Wisdom modifier when wearing no armor and not using a shield.

Unarmored Movement. The fist has the ability to move along vertical surfaces and liquids without falling during their move.

Actions
Multiattack. The fist makes 4 unarmed strike attacks or 3 dart attacks.

Unarmed strike. Melee Weapon Attack: +9 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 8 (1d8 + 4) bludgeoning damage. If the target is a creature, the fist can choose one of the following additional effects:

- The target must succeed on a DC 15 Strength saving throw or drop one item it is holding (fist’s choice).
- The target must succeed on a DC 15 Dexterity saving throw or be knocked prone.
- The target must succeed on a DC 15 Constitution saving throw or be stunned until the end of the fist’s next turn.

Dart. Ranged Weapon Attack: +9 to hit, range 20/60 ft., one target. Hit: 6 (1d4 + 4) piercing damage.

Reactions
Deflect Missiles. The fist can use its reaction to deflect or catch missiles when hit by ranged attacks. The damage of the attack is reduced by 9 (1d10 + 4).

Unlike the other monks, a sacred fist is named for a specific purpose. Whether to seek out an enemy, punish with wicked, or protect a place of importance or power. Due to their ability to survive without food or drink, some sacred fists are taken to remote or virtually inaccessible locations and tasked as guardians of ancient libraries, temples, tombs, or vaults.

Different from the holy orders, monks are often more neutral than good or evil. As a result, if a sacred fist has given an oath to protect something, they are unlikely to let anyone have access to it.

In combat, sacred fists are dangerous combatants who are difficult to pin down and who will easily take advantage of their mobility to avoid larger, slower targets while picking off more less-armored, more dangerous targets first like spellcasters, rogues, and archers.

As opposed to holy acolytes, temple acolytes are trained in hand to hand combat, but mostly they are free labor. Temple acolytes tend the grounds, cook, clean, and perform all of the needed day to day functions of their temple or monastery in hopes that such mundane and banal chores will eventually lead to enlightenment.
Seafaring NPCs

These are some seafaring NPCs. I normally use brigands (CR 1/8) and brigand leader (CR 2) for pirate and pirate captains, but these NPC statblocks are specifically for pirates and sailors. These statblocks make use of the mariner feat from Unearthed Arcana. I hope that makes it into print at some point.

Brute. The boss does an extra die of damage with melee attacks.

Charger. When the boss uses its action to dash, it can use a bonus action to make one melee weapon attack or to shove a creature. If it moves at least 10 feet in a straight line immediately before taking this bonus action, the boss can either gain a +5 bonus to the attack’s damage roll or push the target up to 10 feet away from it.

Crossbow Expert. The boss ignores the loading property of crossbows.

Mariner. As long as the boss is not wearing heavy armor or using a shield, it has a swimming and climbing speed equal to its normal speed, and gains a +1 to AC.

Tavern Brawler. If the boss hits a creature with an unarmed strike or improvised weapon, it can use a bonus action to attempt to grapple the target.

Actions

Multiattack. The boss makes three melee weapon attacks or two ranged weapon attacks.

Mace. Melee Weapon Attack: +7 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 12 (2d8 + 3) bludgeoning damage.

Improvised Weapon or Unarmed Strike. Melee Weapon Attack: +7 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 8 (2d4 + 3) bludgeoning damage.

Heavy Crossbow. Ranged Weapon Attack: +7 to hit, range 100/400 ft., one target. Hit: 8 (ld10 + 3) piercing damage.

Also good as a first mate, the deck boss helps keep order on the ship. Whether a pirate ship, slaver ship, war galley or just normal merchant feighter, life at sea is hard and in addition to the leadership provided by the ship’s captain, the deck boss bolsters that with a health dose of fear.

A brutish person and practiced wrestler, the deck boss answers even possible insubordination by tossing the offender overboard.

Being a pirate captain in general takes guts but being an infamous pirate captain takes real stones. Not only are these captains vicious, violent, uncompromising, and masters of sea warfare, they are also very good at it.

Traveling adventurers paying for passage on an infamous pirate captain’s ship would be wise to be polite, or they might find themselves being tossed overboard or worse.

More feared, or at least as feared, on the seas as the kraken itself, legendary pirate captains only come about every so often. While possibly not, a legendary pirate captain is most likely a very evil person, as it is only through such a reputation that they truly become feared. As witty and charming as they are deadly, only a fool would pick a fight with such a person.

Beyond that, each legendary pirate captain also has a treasure, or treasures, worth more than some kingdoms themselves. Many a traveling adventurer has gone looking for such treasures only to find the treasure’s owner has returned.

Whether impressed into service or because they voluntarily entered the trade, being a sailor is hardly the safest and easiest profession available in the known realms. The life is fraught with peril, if not from harpies, krakens, Kua-Toa, pirates and other terrors of the sea, even a sailor’s comrades might be the end of them. As a result, sailor’s often adopt a "work hard, play hard" mentality.

In combat, a sailor is likely to avoid melee combat whenever possible. Instead, they will throw daggers or javelins at opponents, fleeing when necessary.

Whether out of desperation, or due to a major lack of critical thinking skills, pirates are the crazy ones in an environment full of crazy people. As if being a sailor wasn’t dangerous enough, pirates actually go looking for danger and the spoils available for those who brave the dangers and live.

Life at sea is hard on people, and most pirates don’t live past 1/3 of their race’s average life expectancy. Whether brave or foolhardy, most pirates fight like it’s their last day to live.

WANTED
Pirate Captain Dearth "The Mad" Cromwell (Pirate Captain CR 5) and his first mate Josephine 'Brown Tooth' (Deck Boss CR 6) have remained at large on the western sea for the last decade. With a contingent of dangerous pirates (1d4 Veteran Privateers CR 4, 2d4 Privateers CR 1, 2d6 Pirates CR 1, and 3d6 Sailors CR 1/4), the local crown has offered a bounty of 5,000 gold for their successful capture or deaths. Rumors are that Captain Cromwell and his crew have amassed a sizeable treasure over the years to the adventurer or bounty hunter willing to take it. They were last seen in port in the small village of Whitehead Beach, sailing south in their ship the Gallow's Friend. Any information leading to their arrest will be worth a reward of 100 gold pieces.

While pirates and pirate captains are fierce in their own right, privateers and veteran privateers specialize in teamwork and working together. They've learned that fortune favors the force with both overwhelming numbers and a single mindset. As a result, privateers will use the ship environment to their advantage, climbing up rigging, firing at nearby enemies with their hand crossbows, entangling opponents with nets, and distracting nearby opponents so that their allies can sneak in some deadly stabs or crossbow shots.

Thematic NPCs
Unholy NPCs

Aside from cultists (CR 1/8) and cult fanatics (CR 2), these NPC statblocks represent priests of the unholy. In my games and settings, there are always places where organized evil religions exist. These statblocks represent organized religious entities in evil churches. The base unholy statblocks are for those of the Death Domain as printed in the DMG.

Quick Undead Computations

3 x 3rd level slots for animate dead = +12 zombies or skeletons. 3 x 4th level slots = +18 zombies or skeletons. 2 x 5th level slots = +16 zombies or skeletons. 2 x 6th level slots = +6 ghouls. 1 x 7th level slot = +4 ghouls. 1 x 8th level slot = +5 ghouls, +2 ghasts, or +2 wights. 1 x 9th level slot = +6 ghouls, +3 ghasts or wights, or +2 mummies.

Using all of its spell slots of 3rd level and above, an unholy archbishop could have a standing army of:

- 46 skeletons (CR 1/4)
- 10 ghouls (CR 1)
- 5 wights (CR 3)

Using all of its spell slots of 3rd level and above, an unholy bishop could have a standing army of:

- 46 skeletons (CR 1/4)
- 10 ghouls (CR 1)
- 2 wights (CR 3)

Meanwhile an unholy deacon would only have a standing army of:

- 18 skeletons (CR 1/4)

Hit: 18 (4d8) necrotic damage, on a hit, the target takes 4d8 necrotic damage, and it can’t regain hit points until the start of the unholy archbishop’s next turn. Until then, the hand clings to the target. If the unholy archbishop hits an undead target, it also has disadvantage on attack rolls against the unholy archbishop until the end of the bishop’s next turn.

Serving one of the lawful evil or neutral evil gods who espouse death, the unholy archbishop is a threat to life itself wherever it goes. Looking more like the undead who follow it that a normal humanoid, the unholy bishop is feared by all who heard of it.

Not quite the lowest tier of the religious pyramid, unholy curates are doing better than acolytes and cultists (and the walking dead), but they still have a lot of room to advance. Life is competitive at the low levels, and rather than digging graves, unholy curates spend a fair amount of time undigging them.

Typical daily activities for unholy curates include keeping an eye out for good adventurers, terrorizing the local peasants, and practicing necromantic magics.

Urban NPCs

Aside from Commoner (CR 0) and the other statblocks, I was looking for some social-urban stats. Normal-ish people my party might come across. Some of these stats are outright silly, others are a bit more serious. Have a problem with murder-hobos? The real answer is to talk to them about it. For some fun, this section has a beefy bartender, a legendary beefy bartender, a dishonored veteran, and more. Have fun!

Silly vs Serious

This section has both serious and silly stats. If you are one of those people who wants to avoid silly things like Camelot, here’s a quick guide to which Urban NPCs are silly and which aren’t.

- Beefy Bartender - very silly
- Beggar - not that silly
- Charmer - not that silly
- Diplomat - very silly
- Dishonored Veteran - serious
- Gangster - serious
- Hulking Slave - serious
- Knowledgeable Elder - serious
- Legendary Beefy Bartender - very, very silly
- Normal Bartender - not that silly
- Talented Child Pickpocket - not that silly
- Town Cryer - very silly
- Veteran Scammer - not that silly
- Wee Con Artist - serious

Beefy Bartender

Medium humanoid, any alignment
The gigantic bartender nods as you walk in.

Bouncer. The bartender can move grappled targets at its normal speed.

Brute. The bartender does an one extra die of damage with attacks.

Rager. The bartender adds +3 damage to Strength attacks, has advantage on Strength checks, and has resistance to bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing damage.

Reckless. At the start of its turn, the bartender can gain advantage on all melee weapon attack rolls during that turn, but attack rolls against it have advantage until the start of its next turn.

Tavern Brawler. If the bartender hits a creature with an unarmed strike or improvised weapon, it can use a bonus action to attempt to grapple the target.

Unarmored Defense. The bartender’s armor class equals 10 + its Dexterity modifier + its Constitution modifier if it not wearing any armor or using a shield.

Actions

Multiattack. The bartender makes two weapon attacks.

Improved Weapon or Unarmed Strike. Melee or Ranged Weapon Attack: +8 to hit, reach 5 ft. or ranged 20/60 feet, one target. Hit: 12 (2d4 + 7) bludgeoning damage. If the bartender moves more than 10 feet in a straight line before attacking a target and then hits, it then automatically shoves the creature 10 feet away in the opposite direction or deals an additional 5 points of damage on the hit.

Wilderness NPCs

This section is NPCs for wilderness encounters that do not involve giants, hags, dire wolves, etc. The following are various wilderness NPCs to be encountered in camps, hamlets, very small villages, or even in cabins in the woods. The forest witch and witch doctor specifically are unique spellcasting classes, as their spells do not come from a specific list. Instead, they have spells based upon specific schools of magic.

The old man or lady down the road, the young boy or girl who spends way too much time out in nature collecting plants, the disabled war veteran who has a bunch of dried roots hanging in his or her window, the holistic healer can take on many forms.

The core of this character is that they do not heal with magic but know how. Their reception and willing to heal the party or others beyond their community will often be determined by how they are treated.

A crafty holistic healer might even have 1d4 potions of poison lying around to give to those who might mistreat them.

Combat Maneuvers. Once per turn, the outlaw can use one of the following effects:

• Trip Attack: A larger or smaller creature hit by one of the outlaw’s attacks must make a DC 15 Strength save or be knocked prone.
• Menacing Attack: When the outlaw hits a creature with an attack, the creature must make a DC 15 Wisdom save or be frightened until the end of the outlaw’s next turn.
• Disarming Attack: When the outlaw hits a creature with a weapon attack, the target must make a DC 15 Strength check or drop a weapon of the outlaw’s choice which lands at the creature’s feet.

Cunning Action. On each of its turns, the outlaw can use a bonus action to take the Dash, Disengage, or Hide action.

Sneak Attack (1/Turn). The outlaw deals an extra 10 (3d6) damage when it hits a target with a weapon attack and has advantage on the attack roll, when the target is within 5 feet of an ally of the outlaw that isn’t incapacitated and the outlaw doesn’t have disadvantage on the attack roll, or if no creature other than the target is within 5 feet of the outlaw.

Actions

Multiattack. The outlaw makes three shortsword attacks or two longbow attacks.

Shortsword. Melee Weapon Attack: +8 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 7 (1d6 + 4) piercing damage, and the target must succeed on a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 10 (3d6) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Reaction

Parry. When another creature damages the outlaw, the outlaw can use its reaction to reduce the damage by 1d12 + 4.

The outlaw isn’t in the wilderness by choice. The outlaw is on the run either on their own or with a small group of allies who may or may not know their true identity. If confronted, the outlaw will not hesitate to run if things get tough, after all that’s what they are doing in the wilderness in the first place.

The outlaw’s combat maneuvers, combined with their cunning action, can make them a difficult foe to take down although their real advantage lays in their damage output. The outlaw is most likely to try and take out the weakest foe possible, then flee if they don’t have backup.

Outlaws are commonly in the company of Brigands (CR 1/8), Brigand Captains (CR 2) and other low-lifes who take to the woods.

Appendix B: Legendary Actions

I did not build out legendary actions for the higher-level NPCs in this supplement, but I thought I'd address the issue here. From looking at the MM and other sources, legendary actions aren't given out automatically because a creature had a high CR. For example, the Balor (CR 19) and Death Knight (CR 17) from the MM don't have legendary actions, meanwhile the Vampire (CR 13) does. Therefore, it makes sense that legendary actions are instead given to creatures meant to feel like main antagonists, like the real bad guys. For more information see page 11 of the MM.

Instead of making legendary actions for these NPCs, I decided instead to compile some examples. If you'd like one of these statblocks to be a more threatening antagonist, build out some legendary actions for them.

What Legendary Actions should NPCs get?

In order to get a good handle on legendary actions, I looked through the MM and VGM to see what legendary actions were given to all of the creatures in there. I made a list summarizing what types of legendary actions those get. Standard creatures with legendary actions get 3.

"The creature can take 3 legendary actions, choosing from the options below. Only one legendary action option can be used at a time and only at the end of another creature's turn. The creature regains spent legendary actions at the start of its turn."

Here are some examples:

- Make a regular attack (1 action)
- Move up to 1/2 its speed (1 action)
- Move up to its speed (1 action)
- Grapple or shove a creature (1 action)
- Make a powerful attack, such as a bite (2 actions)
- Make a skill check (1 action)
- Cast a cantrip (1 action)
- Cast a spell (3 actions)
- Cast a 1st level spell (1 action)
- Cast a 2nd level spell (2 actions)
- Cast a 3rd level spell (3 actions)
- Use a unique ability, like a minor buff (1 action)
- Use a unique ability, usually an attack with a minor side effect or a major buff (2 actions)
- Use a unique ability, usually a powerful debuff of some kind or a self-heal (3 actions)

For the NPCs in this supplement, some other possible legendary actions include

- Move up to its speed or 1/2 its speed without provoking attacks of opportunity (1 action)
- Drink a healing potion (2 actions)
- Take the Dodge action (2 actions)
- Use the Help action (1 action)
- Drink a potion (2 actions)

Adding Legendary Resistance

Adding legendary resistance to a creature has the following effect on CR:

"Each per-day use of this trait increases the monster's effective hit points based on the expected challenge rating: 1-4, 10 hp; 5-10, 20 hp; 11 or higher, 30 hp."

Based on this, adding 2-3 uses of legendary resistance to a creature can be expected to increase its CR by up to 1.
