Welcome to Adventure Path Plug-Ins!

This product is a part of our line of support materials for extended Adventure Path-style campaign play for use with Paizo’s Pathfinder Roleplaying Game. When you see the “Adventure Path Plug-In” logo at the top of a Legendary Games product, you can expect it is designed to fit directly with the themes of a particular Adventure Path campaign. The all-star team of designers here at Legendary Games is committed to bringing you—the busy GM or player—the absolute best third party support for your Pathfinder campaign. To deliver on that commitment, we’ve assembled the best of the best of current gaming authors, designers and layout experts so that you can feel comfortable that Legendary Games products will be the most creative, rules-legal and well-designed content you can find. Though Adventure Path Plug-Ins all share a theme with a specific Adventure Path campaign, they are designed to be easily incorporated into your home game regardless of what campaign you may be running.

Hey, What’s With the Names?

You will see us use phrases such as “Kingdom-Building Adventure Path” instead of the title of a very popular sandbox-style kingdom-building Adventure Path. Or, you may see us use names such as the “Lost Lands,” the “Faerie Queen,” the “Horned God of Hunters,” the rival “Baron and Baroness of Hookmarsh” to the west, or the “Broken Kingdom” to the north that grants PCs their charter to explore and rule instead of the proper names of specific characters or places from those adventures or gods from the world setting. While we can create compatible products under the Open Game License, we still have to be respectful of certain content Paizo owns. Because we want to be very respectful of their content and work in partnership with them, we use these “replacement phrases.” Plus, this helps the product have a more general appeal to those who may be running a home campaign that fits the same themes. In any event, we are 100% confident you know what we are talking about and will have no problem making the required connection.

Special Electronic Features

We’ve hyperlinked this product internally from the Table of Contents and externally with links to the Pathfinder Reference Document, the official online compendium of game rules, as well as the d20pfsrd.com. If it is in the core rulebook, we generally didn’t link to it unless the rule is an obscure one. The point is not to supersede the game books, but rather to help support you, the player, in accessing the rules, especially those from newer books or that you may not have memorized.

The Treasury of the Kingdom is full of items designed to fit right into a campaign where exploration, kingdom building, and contact with fey are strong themes. You’ll find items that will suit everyone from adventurers delving into the wild unknown to established rulers commanding armies in a cutthroat war. Whether you need clever items for lowly bandits to use in their unsuccessful quest to defeat the PCs, a battle standard to summon an army of fallen warriors, the personal treasury of an insane fey queen, or even a way to make a city fly, this book contains the items you need to make your campaign memorable. Some items may be in the hands of the PC’s foes, such as crafty kobolds, scheming hags, or even an ancient lich. Others may have been left behind by individuals who fell victim long ago to unknown dangers.

The items are listed by price in the table below, and their descriptions are broken up by item time thereafter.

Aura moderate illusion and transmutation

This +1 greenwood tower shield is covered in vines and looks more like a thriving plant than a tool for battle. The shield quietly creeps along the ground, and its armor check penalty does not apply on Stealth checks. Once per day as a standard action, the shield’s wearer can command these vines to provide additional protection for 1 minute, during which time the vines automatically deflect the first ranged weapon attack each round that targets the wielder or any adjacent creature. The wielder cannot suppress this deflection to save the effect for a possible later ranged attack; however, ineffectual ranged attacks, such as throwing non-damaging objects, do not trigger this deflection. The vines cannot deflect spells or attacks from unusually large ranged weapons, such as siege weapons.

In addition, the shield also allows the wielder to appear as assume tree shape once per day, and once per day the wielder also can disguise himself and his allies as trees as if using veil (DC 19).

Burning Skull Mace

Weight 16 lbs.

Aura moderate evocation

This +1 flaming heavy mace is made from a troll’s skull and it flames automatically when grasped and wielded; it need not be activated. Once per day, the wielder can command the skull to float off the mace’s haft and attack on its own as a spiritual ally for 1 minute, with an attack bonus equal to the wielder’s base attack bonus +3. The skull is made of bone and is not considered a force effect; however, it has the same immunity to physical attack as a normal spiritual ally. Each successful hit by the skull deals 1d8+5 points of damage plus 1d6 points of fire damage. While the skull is detached, the haft can be wielded as a +1 light mace.

Falling Star is a +1 holy returning starknife that is sacred to the Goddess of Luck. Three times per day, the wielder can throw Falling Star as a full-round action, causing the starknife to split into a number of identical +1 holy returning starknives equal to the number of attacks she could make as part of a full-attack action with this weapon. After all attacks are resolved, the duplicate knives disappear and Falling Star returns to the wielder’s hand as normal for a returning weapon.

War God’s Greatsword

PRICE 34,050 GP

Slot none
CL 9th
Weight 8 lbs.

Aura moderate necromancy

A war god’s greatsword is a +3 adamantine greatsword that gains additional power as its wielder defeats worthy foes. Whenever its wielder kills a foe with at least as many HD as she has, the sword gains one charge. The sword can hold up to 5 charges. The wielder can unleash any number of charges as a standard action to terrify all enemies within a 30-foot radius. Those that fail a DC 21 Will save are frightened for 1 round; those that succeed are shaken for 1 round instead. For each additional charge the wielder expends, the save DC is increased by 1 and the duration of the frightened effect on a failed save is increased by 1 round.

The sword gains power from its connection to the prowess of its current wielder. Whenever a new creature wields the sword, it loses all of its charges. A creature must truly die for the sword to gain power—as such, it does not gain power from slaying summoned creatures. Except in extraordinary circumstances decided by the GM, the sword cannot gain power from a particular creature more than once.

This modest but precisely crafted arrow is a boon to those stuck in unfamiliar wilderness. When shot up into the air, it lands unharmed on the ground, its tip pointing in the direction of the nearest source of fresh water within 10 miles. If there is no water within 10 miles, it instead lands point upward. If the arrow hits a creature, it deals 1d6 extra damage, and then becomes nonmagical.

War Trident of the Lizard King

PRICE 23,320 GP

Slot none

Weight 12 lbs.

Aura moderate enchantment

This +2 war trident is a symbol of rulership over a lizardfolk tribe. A war trident is a two-handed martial weapon, dealing 1d10 points of piercing damage with a critical multiplier of x3. It is too heavy to be effectively thrown. Three times per day, when the wielder is damaged by an attack he can channel the spirits of his lizardfolk ancestors as an immediate action, entering a blood rage lasting 1 minute or until the battle ends, whichever comes first. While enraged, he gains a +2 morale bonus to Constitution and a +2 morale bonus to Strength but takes a -2 penalty to AC. When wielded, clawed coils snake out from a war trident of the lizard king along the wielder’s arms, making the weapon exceedingly difficult to disarm (+10 bonus to CMD against combat maneuvers to disarm). The wielder can dismiss this effect as a free action, allowing him to put away or drop the trident as normal.

In addition, whenever the wearer is shaken by a fear effect during combat, he gains fast healing 1 as long as the fear effect lasts or until the end of the combat, whichever occurs first. A fey animal has the following characteristics, which modify or replace characteristics of the base animal. Its type changes to fey. It has 10 Charisma and 4 Intelligence, and can speak and understand Sylvan. It gains a +4 racial bonus to Dexterity and a -2 racial penalty to Strength, as well as a +4 bonus on saving throws vs. mind-affecting effects. In addition, it gains 10 points of resistance to both cold and electricity, and DR 5/cold iron. It also gains a fly speed equal to its base land speed, with good maneuverability. Aura strong transmutation

The head of this jeweled silver scepter contains a floating hourglass. The wielder of a scepter of forgotten time gains a +4 insight bonus on initiative checks. Five times per day as a standard action, the wielder can distort time in a 30-foot radius centered on the scepter. This distortion functions as a combined haste and slow spell; she can select up to 13 targets, affecting each creature as either haste or slow for 13 rounds (DC 19 Will negates).

Once per day, the wielder can attempt to send a creature into the future with a successful melee touch attack. A target failing a DC 20 Will save is simultaneously frozen in time and disappears from the time stream occupied by other creatures. The creature and all of its equipment cannot be the target of any spells or effects, and the durations of all effects affecting the creature are suspended and do not elapse or resume until the creature rejoins the time stream. The time-shunted creature can take no actions, other than attempting a new Will save each round to return to the normal time stream. When it successfully saves, or after 13 rounds, the target automatically returns to the normal flow of time in the same location as when it left the time stream. If that space is occupied, the creature is shunted to the nearest open space.

This elegant staff of living wood is constantly changing its own form. Its branches clutch a flawless spherical emerald that crackles with dark energy. This staff reduces the light level in a 60 foot radius by two steps, to a minimum of dim light. In addition, the staff of the fey queen allows the use of the following spells:

The battle standard of the fallen warrior calls the spirits of the those fallen in battle to rally for one last fight. By planting the standard firmly into the ground as a standard action, the bearer calls this army to battle. After the battle has finished, the spirits dissipate, and the banner becomes nonmagical.

The army of the fallen contains 100 semi-corporeal manifestations of warrior's spirits, which flock to their summoner's aid in mass combat. The army's OM is +7, and its DV is 17, or 19 against armies that use nonmagical weapons. In addition, the army gains a +4 bonus on initiative rolls in the tactics phase. It is immune to critical hits, and takes no penalties from difficult terrain. When an effect would cause the army to take a morale penalty, the penalty is lessened by one (minimum 0).

The army’s abilities are described in Ultimate Battle from Legendary Games, though their effects are included in the description above. The army has the command boons death before dishonor and ready for battle, and the special abilities amorphous, damage reduction (magic), and woodland stride.

Kobolds invented black dragon’s spit to protect their lairs from intruders, and they often use it in combination with traps like pits and snares. Black dragon’s spit appears to be a nondescript piece of black fabric, 10 feet square. When placed on the ground, a DC 25 Perception check is required to notice it. Whenever a creature of size Small or larger steps on the fabric, it explodes into a 20-foot-radius burst of acid dealing 4d6 points of damage (DC 13 Reflex half) to all creatures in the area, and leaves 20 foot radius pool of acid on the ground that persists for 1 minute. Creatures in or entering the pool take 1 point of acid damage per 5-foot square they occupy at any point during their turn (this damage is doubled if the creature is prone), and creatures ending their turn in the area of the pool take an additional 1d6 points of acid damage.

_Boots of the false trail_ allow their wearer to disguise her footprints as those of a different creature. The wearer can choose any kind of creature that has the same number of legs as she does and is within two size categories, as long as she is familiar with the appearance of its footprints. Her footprints appear to be prints typical of an average creature of that race, and appear to be wearing shoes only if shoe-wearing is typical behavior for that race. If she chooses to disguise her footprints as those of a creature of a different size category, the unguainly shape of the boots makes it impossible for her to run or charge, but she can otherwise move normally. She can change the footprints that she leaves as a standard action. Unlike most boots, the _boots of the false trail_ can change their form to fit any creature with feet. For example, they will turn into horseshoes to fit on a horse. A creature need wear only one pair of boots to use them; they need not wear boots on every foot, as the magic of the boots affects all tracks the creature leaves. Spells like _residual tracking_ provide an image of the kind of creature the tracks reveal rather than the wearer's actual appearance. Bonuses on Survival checks based on creature type apply based on the apparent creature tracks left by the wearer, rather than her actual type.

The eerie light inside this vial appears to be a glowing potion at first, but it regularly shifts and coalesces into a leering skull. A _bottled wisp_ is the distilled essence of a will o’ wisp. When the _bottled wisp_’s holder uncorks the vial, he releases the skull, which shines light as _dancing lights_. He may control it as a move action, as per the _dancing lights_ spell. The wisp has a 10 foot aura of fear around it, which imposes a –2 morale penalty on saving throws against fear effects to all creatures who fail a DC 11 Will save. A creature that succeeds on this saving throw is immune to the saving throw penalty from the wisp. After one minute, the wisp disappears, and the saving throw penalty ends. The ingredients required to craft a _bottled wisp_ can be harvested from the remains of a dead will o’ wisp with a successful DC 16 Heal check and DC 16 Knowledge (dungeoneering) check.

The _crown of affirmation_ makes those around its wearer more pliable when the wearer speaks, and less able to communicate when they do not agree. The wearer gains a +5 competence bonus on Diplomacy checks to gain assistance from others. When the wearer uses a Bluff check to make an unreasonable, far-fetched, or impossible lie, the crown reduces the penalty on that Bluff check by 5. When ordinary persuasion does not suffice, the wearer can use _mass suggestion_ (DC 19) and _modify memory_ (DC 17) once per day each.

When the wearer cannot convince others, by skill with words or magic, to agree, the crown instead encourages them to remain silent. Any creature within a 50-foot radius around the wearer and within the crown’s line of effect must succeed at a DC 18 Will save to knowingly express disagreement with the wearer. Creatures who fail the Will save cannot communicate disagreement with the wearer while they remain within the radius, or for one minute thereafter. Creatures who succeed at the Will save are immune to this ability for 24 hours. This ability is a mind-affecting compulsion effect.

If a creature in a kingdom leadership role wears a _crown of affirmation_, the kingdom’s Loyalty score is increased by 1, or by 2 if worn by the ruler or co-ruler. In addition, a ruler wearing a _crown of affirmation_ can reduce a kingdom’s Unrest by 1 by spending 1d3 weeks touring the kingdom. This reduction in Unrest cannot be used in consecutive months.

Drowning Rat Charm

Price: 3,750 gp

Slot: neck

CL: 7th

Weight: 2 lbs.

Aura: moderate necromancy and transmutation

This drowning rat charm is a choker made from a mummified rat biting its own tail. Its wearer can steal the ability to breathe underwater from another creature by hitting that creature with a melee touch attack. If the targeted creature's ability to breathe underwater comes from a spell, the wearer may roll a caster level check against a DC of 11 + the spell's caster level to end that effect for the target and transfer the ability to breathe underwater from another creature by hitting that creature with a melee touch attack. The wearer can suppress that ability for 3 minutes (DC 17 Fortitude negates), gaining the same ability for itself for the same duration if the target fails its save. A target that loses its ability to breathe water gains the ability to breathe air and can immediately begin holding its breath, even if no air is present.

If the target drowns while its ability to breathe water is suppressed or lost, the wearer gains the ability to breathe underwater for 24 hours. If the drowning rat charm is removed suppressed or lost, the wearer gains the ability to breathe underwater for 24 hours. If the drowning rat charm is removed.

Weight: 1 lb.

Aura: moderate transmutation

The dryad’s wreath allows its wearer to attune to a tree, and draw upon its power to influence plants in the area around it. The attunement ritual takes 10 minutes. Once the wearer has attuned to a tree, as long as she is within 900 feet of it, she gains the following abilities. She can use speak with plants at will, and thorny entanglement (DC 15, +8 to hit) once per day. Once per day as a standard action, she can teleport herself to the side of her bonded tree. She can also meld into her bonded tree, as if using a dryad’s tree meld ability. In addition, she knows how many unnatural creatures, such as undead or aberrations, are within the 900-foot radius around the tree, though she does not know their locations. If she ever travels more than 900 feet from the tree, she becomes sickened. She may choose to sever her connection with a tree at any time as a standard action. After severing a connection, she can attune to a tree of her choice after 24 hours.

Faerie Flute

Price: 4,000 gp

Slot: none

CL: 5th

Weight: 1 lb.

Aura: faint conjuration

A faerie flute can summon a swarm of diminutive faeries to the flautist’s aid. To summon the faeries, the flautist must succeed at a DC 15 Perform (wind) check as a standard action. The flautist can direct the faeries in future rounds by speaking to them in Sylvan, or by succeeding on a DC 15 Perform (wind) check as a standard action.

The faerie swarm can work together to lift and carry an object or a willing creature weighing 50 pounds or less. When carrying a creature or object, the swarm has a 15 foot movement speed. A carried creature cannot move on its own, but is otherwise unhindered in its actions. When the swarm is not carrying anything, it has a 40 foot speed.

Against the flautist’s foes, the swarm is less benevolent. The swarm can chose to deal 1d4 points of damage per round to creatures of its choice within its area, distracting those who fail a DC 11 Fortitude save. The swarm can instead surround a single creature and pull a prank on it, using a dirty trick combat maneuver. The swarm’s CMB for the dirty trick is +4, and it does not provoke an attack of opportunity. The faerie swarm has AC 16, touch AC 16, flat-footed AC 14, and 6 hit points. Its Fortitude save modifier is +1, its Reflex save modifier is +4, and its Will save modifier is +4. Its bonus on Fly checks is +10. If any other statistics are necessary, use the...

This mushroom from the realm of the fey can quickly sprout a fairy ring. When the bearer plants it in fertile ground as a standard action, a fairy ring pops up in a 20-foot-radius around her. Anyone other than the bearer within this ring must succeed at a DC 17 Will save or begin dancing. Dancing creatures are flat-footed, and they must spend a move action every round moving counter-clockwise around the circle. They cannot willingly drop prone, and if they are knocked prone, they must attempt to stand up. They cannot roll Acrobatics checks to avoid attacks of opportunity. In addition, dancing creatures cannot cross the boundary of the ring willingly, and the ring makes it more difficult for others to remove them as well. They must attempt a saving throw against effects that would remove them from the ring, and they gain a +5 bonus to CMD against any combat maneuver that would remove them from the ring. The fairy ring persists for 9 rounds, after which the fairy ring mushroom vanishes in a puff of spores that grow into rings of ordinary edible mushrooms within one week.

The frumious frock is made of sleek tawny fur that radiates heat. Once per day, when the wearer is reduced below one-half her maximum hit points, she is overcome by a wild fury for 5 rounds unknown to all but the most powerful of fey beasts. During this fury, the frumious frock bursts into flames and hundreds of barbed quills emerge, with dozens of these quills twisting together into a viciously barbed tail. The wearer gains the benefits of haste and the scent special quality during this fury and also gains a tail attack as a secondary natural attack dealing 1d10 points of piercing damage and 2d6 points of fire damage. Creatures struck by the tail are sickened with pain for 1 round (DC 25 Reflex negates). The wearer gains fire resistance 10 at all times, but while in fury this increases to fire resistance 30 and the all of the wearer’s natural weapons or unarmed strikes other than the tail deal an additional 1d6 points of fire damage. Creatures striking the wearer with a natural weapon, unarmed strike, or touch attack while she is in a fury take 1d6 points of fire damage (2d6 if the attack is a critical hit), creatures failing a DC 25 Reflex save are pierced by a quill, taking 1d10 points of piercing damage and becoming sickened with pain for 1 round. The map of the trailblazer is ideal for individuals mapping out uncharted territory. It grants its holder a +2 insight bonus on Knowledge (geography) checks, as well as a +2 insight bonus on any skill check used to draw map. The map of the trailblazer folds up into a standard sized map case, but it can expand to an enormous size. If the holder would draw a line off the edge of the map, the paper extends itself to create more room to draw. The map divides the landscape into hexes, which are each 6 inches across. By speaking the appropriate command word and touching one of these hexes, the cartographer can cause the map to enlarge that hex to be 5 feet across. Speaking the command word again causes the map to revert to its normal state, and shrinks any details on that hex proportionally.

Once per week, the holder can ask the map a single question about the hex that she is in. This question must be one of the questions listed in the spell description of commune with nature. In addition, the holder gains benefits from knowledge of her surroundings. If she has marked a location on her map, she gains a benefit while in that hex based on the type of location. The location types are landmark, plant, resource, map, commune with nature. The holder gains a +1 insight bonus on Will saves and a +2 insight bonus on Constitution checks to avoid fatigue.

Landmark: She gains a +1 insight bonus on Will saves and a +2 insight bonus on Constitution checks to avoid fatigue.

Plant: She gains a +2 insight bonus on Knowledge (nature) checks and a +2 insight bonus on Heal checks.

Resource: She gains a +2 insight bonus on Appraise checks and a +2 insight bonus on the Profession check most closely associated with the relevant resource.

Ruin: She gains trap sense +1, as the rogue class feature. If she already has trap sense from another source, her trap sense increases by 1. In addition, she gains a +2 insight bonus on Perception checks.

Settlement: She gains a +2 insight bonus on Knowledge (local) checks about the settlement and on Diplomacy checks to gather information.

Owlbear dander is a fine powder. Rumors tell that the same deranged arcanist who created the first owlbear was also the first to manufacture this substance. A pouch of owlbear dander can have a potent effect on the body and mind of anyone who inhales it. The powder comes in one-dose pouches, which can be thrown as a ranged touch attack with a range increment of 10 feet. A creature who inhales the dander must succeed at a DC 17 Fortitude save or be overcome by the same bestial rage that fuels an owlbear’s violent nature. A creature who fails this save grows a beak and two claws, which are all primary natural attacks. The creature also falls under the effects of the rage spell, and is compelled to attack the creature nearest to it with its beak and claws to the exclusion of all other actions. At the end of each round, the creature can roll another DC 17 Fortitude save to end the effects of the owlbear dander. The plow has 4 charges, which replenish each month. With a 10 minute ritual, the plow of abundant harvest can boost the yield of a kingdom hex for a month. Each time the plow is used in a different hex, it decreases the kingdom’s Consumption cost by 1 for that month, and the plow expends one charge. Each month, there is a 5% chance that a leaf leshy or gourd leshy spontaneously arises.

The plow’s bearer can create magically enhanced crops. These crops stay magical for one month, or until they are consumed. One charge from the plow produces enough food for one meal for one creature. A creature who consumes the meal gains a +2 bonus on saving throws against diseases and poisons, which lasts for 24 hours. In addition, if a disease or poison causes the creature to take ability damage during this 24 hour period, he heals 1d4 points of damage to the relevant ability score. A stickytongue mask looks like a boggard’s face. The mask extends its wearer’s tongue by 10 feet, and makes the end of the tongue particularly sticky. As a swift action, the wearer can extend her tongue toward a target. If she succeeds at a melee touch attack, her tongue acts as a tether. Her target takes a –2 penalty to AC and cannot move farther away from her than the length of the tongue. A tethered creature can escape as a standard action by succeeding at a DC 14 Strength check, or by dealing 5 points of slashing damage to the tongue (AC 13), which severs the tongue. A severed tongue regrows after one minute. If she succeeds to tether a creature, she may attempt to pull the creature closer as a standard action with a reposition combat maneuver that does not provoke an attack of opportunity. She can detach the tongue as a free action.

Alternatively, whenever the wearer is not tethered to a creature with her tongue, she may use her tongue to attempt to trip, disarm, or perform a dirty trick. Any of these combat maneuvers provokes attacks of opportunity unless the wearer would normally not provoke an attack of opportunity when using that maneuver. Attacks of opportunity can only target the tongue itself, not the one wearing the mask. An attack of opportunity that does 5 points of slashing damage to the tongue (AC 13) severs it.

Aura strong evocation and transmutation

The aeromancer’s heart is a weightless, flawless diamond that imprisons a miniature tornado. It represents the crowning magical achievement of a lost race. The bearer of the aeromancer’s heart can cast control weather and control winds once per day. She can also cast air walk, call lightning, and lightning bolt 3 times per day, and cast air bubble and gentle breeze at will.

As it stands, some of the magical energy of the aeromancer’s heart has dissipated over time. If that energy were to be restored, perhaps by journeying to meet with the most accomplished mages in the Plane of Air and bargaining for their assistance, or by performing some other fantastical quest, the aeromancer’s heart would reveal its true power.

A restored aeromancer’s heart can make a city fly. Activating this power of the aeromancer’s heart requires a DC 30 Knowledge (Arcana) or Use Magic Device check. Once activated, the aeromancer’s heart sends tendrils into the ground that pick up all buildings within one city district block and lift them and 100 feet of ground underneath them into the air (see the kingdom-building rules in Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Ultimate Campaign and Ultimate Rulership from Legendary Games). A flying city has a 30 foot movement speed horizontally, and a 10 foot movement speed vertically. It will hover in place unless directed by a pilot who succeeds at a DC 25 Knowledge (Arcana) or Use Magic Device check to steer it. Failing this check by 5 or more causes the city to move in a random direction.

A flying city gains a +10 bonus on its Defense modifier, and many armies cannot target it. A flying city can target flying creatures with ranged attacks, including from siege weapons. Because it sits atop a thick and solid slab of ground, creatures aboard the flying city cannot target creatures directly below the flying city unless they are clinging to its underside.

The original creators of the aeromancer’s heart were aware of the devastation a city could cause by landing on top of buildings and creatures on the ground below, so the artifact will only allow a pilot to land the city on flat and empty ground. An aeromancer’s heart that is currently causing a city to fly cannot be moved from its position.

When a lich descents into torpor, progressing from a full lich to an atrophied lich to a demilich, its phylactery slowly falls apart over time. Occasionally, the phylactery of an atrophied lich remains even after its master is destroyed. Such phylacteries become artifacts, powered by the renewed tenacity of their masters to cling to existence, and grant some aspects of a lich's power to a new master.

The bearer of the phylactery reacts to positive and negative energy as if it were undead, healing from negative energy and taking damage from positive energy. If the bearer is an undead, he gains channel resistance +4. The bearer also gains resistance 10 to both cold and electricity. Additionally, he casts all of his necromancy spells at +1 caster level.

The bearer can slow his opponent's movements with a touch. If he succeeds at a melee touch attack with a free hand, he can affect his target as per the slow spell (DC 14). He can use this ability at will. The bearer can also cast enervation 3/day.

Legends tell that repeated use of a fractured phylactery can cause it to repair over time, granting even further powers to its bearer, and eventually causing the lich itself to return. More than one foolish adventurer has been slain by a fully restored lich who will stop at nothing to reclaim its most prized possession.

DESTRUCTION

A fractured phylactery is destroyed if it is cast into the Positive Energy Plane.

Treasury of the Kingdom!

Treasury of the Kingdom brings you a bevy of magical items perfect for the freeholder lords of a newborn kingdom hacked out of the wilderness. Here can be found tools of war like the shield of the encroaching forest and battle standard of the fallen, but also implements of exploration to blaze trails through forest and field, hill and vale like the survivalist’s arrow and scout’s spyglass. You will also find items that interact with the kingdom-building rules described in Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Ultimate Campaign and expanded in Ultimate Rulership from Legendary Games, like instant signal towers, crown of affirmation, and the plow of the abundant harvest. Finally, since explorers in the deep wild are not moving into lands uninhabited, but rather places that are haunted by the magical and mysterious fey and monstrous tribes alike, from the burning skull mace and hag’s eye to the staff of the fey queen! In all, you'll find over 40 magic items, from single-use ephemera to a pair of mighty artifacts; everything you'll need to stock your wilderness kingdom campaign with an array of awesome items to intrigue your players and enrich their enemies. If it's fantastical items that delight and excite, your PCs will love what they find in the Treasury of the Kingdom.
