HOW TO PLAY

The Solstice Scar is a Pathfinder Society Scenario designed for 1st- through 11th-level characters (Tier 1–11; Subtiers 1–2, 3–4, 5–6, 7–8 and 10–11). This scenario is designed for play in the Pathfinder Society Roleplaying Guild, but can easily be adapted for use with any world. For more information on the Roleplaying Guild, how to find games in your area, see the campaign’s home page at paizo.com/pathfindersociety. This is Version A of an evolving storyline that is re-released regularly with updated content.
When the Shining Crusade defeated the dread lich Tar-Baphon in 3827 AR, the lich’s lieutenants scattered, hoping to evade the crusade’s triumphant armies. Eshimka, one of the nightwalkers serving Tar-Baphon, fled north to hide and build up its power. Ivora, a disciple of the divine martyr Vildeis, tracked the evil creature into the Tusk Mountains. There she contacted a nearby tribe of Kellids known as the Twinhorn following, and together, they formed a plan to destroy the nightwalker.

On the winter solstice, they lured Eshimka to a circle of standing stones where the Twinhorn druids used their powerful magic to bind the nightwalker. Ivora leapt from the shadows and attacked, burying her sacred dagger deep into Eshimka’s flesh before the blade snapped off near the hilt. Try as it might, the nightwalker could not pry the blade loose. As the druids’ ritual concluded at the darkest hour of the solstice, Eshimka sensed its imminent demise and used magic to escape back to the Negative Energy Plane.

After the escape of the nightwalker, Ivora left the ruined hilt of her blade with the Twinhorn following, instructing them to place it on the center stone each year when the world grew darkest. She then traveled north, pursuing new threats in her never-ending quest to eradicate evil from Golarion. The Twinhorns have kept their promise to Ivora over countless generations, ensuring that their nomadic circuit always brings them back to the standing stones each winter.

For centuries, Eshimka has been able to travel the planes and build up its power, gathering armies of undead followers. However, the combination of the druids’ magic and the fragment of Ivora’s blade have prevented the nightwalker from returning; the former bars it from traveling to the Material Plane except during the winter solstice, and the latter pulses painfully with holy power as a reminder of what awaits the undead menace if it returns. Eshimka is patient and waits for the day it can gain its revenge on mortals. Each year it prepares itself to travel back, but thinks better after sensing Ivora—in truth the hilt of her dagger—waiting to finish it off.

Where on Golarion?

Part 1 of this adventure takes place in Absalom, where the Twinhorn warriors have broken into the Blakros Museum and retrieved their stolen relic, setting off the museum’s numerous defenses in the process. After the PCs retrieve the hilt and make peace with the Kellids, they travel north through the Hold of Belkzen for Part 2. While in the land of the orcs, they must earn their passage, but they run afoul of a violet tribe of orcs and their giant allies. In Part 3, they reach the Twinhorn camp at the base of the Tusk Mountains, but find they are too late and Eshimka’s vanguard has already begun its invasion of Golarion. For more information about Belkzen and the Realm of the Mammoth Lords, see Pathfinder Campaign Setting: Belkzen, Hold of the Orc Hordes and Pathfinder Campaign Setting: People of the North, available in game stores and online at paizo.com.
Skills and Saves

The Difficulty Class of many of this adventure’s skill checks and saving throws varies by subtier. Each such check is defined as Easy, Average, or Hard. The corresponding DC for each of these checks in a given subtier appears in the table below.

Recently, acquisition agents from the Blakros Museum discovered the Twinhorns’ interesting tradition while following the story of Ivvora, champion of the Shining Crusade. They approached the following, asking to buy the relic to display in their new exhibit. When the Twinhorns refused, the acquisition agents decided to steal it, unwilling to let such a rare treasure rest in the hands of barbaric northerners. They quickly traveled south, returning to Absalom with their prize. Once the following became aware of the theft, they dispatched a large group of warriors to retrieve the hilt, led by Medda, the following’s spiritual leader and keeper of Ivvora’s treasured weapon. They vowed to return with it before winter solstice, for it was not a point of pride but a matter of life and death for all living creatures in their territory.

SUMMARY

The PCs begin the adventure in the Grand Lodge, having just participated in the Torchbearing, an annual event to train Pathfinders and build trust between its diverse agents. In Part 1, the PCs learn from Venture-Captain Ambrus Valsin that the Blakros Museum is under attack—again. He urges the PCs to help him disable the haywire defenses and arrest the thieves who invaded the museum. The PCs must deal with the magical wards, constructs, guard creatures, and even haunted Shining Crusade relics. Once they get to the third floor, they encounter Medda and her Twinhorn warriors. While interacting with them, a bound devil escapes into the cramped lounge; the Kellids and the PCs must work together to destroy this greater threat.

After the devil is dispatched, Medda has a warrior’s respect for the PCs and is willing to discuss the Kellids’ reason for attacking. Valsin is angered to learn that museum agents resorted to theft to gain relics and promises Medda that the PCs will accompany them back to the Tusk Mountains to return the hilt, beginning Part 2.

The route crosses through Belkzen, where the convoy struggles to purchase enough tokens to grant safe passage under Chief Grask Uldeth’s protection. The PCs must work with different tribes to secure safe passage. Once they have accumulated enough tokens, the PCs continue north, up the Flood Road and Ivvora’s Path, the route she used when pursuing Eshimka. While traveling, the Ice Tooth and Black Sun clans attack the convoy, ignoring The Empty Hand’s protection. The PCs must fight off the orc ambush and retain enough supplies to make it to the Tusk Mountains.

In Part 3, the PCs arrive at the Twinhorn encampment too late; Eshimka’s forces have begun flooding through a portal at the standing stones. The PCs must fight back the undead and close the rift. Once it’s sealed, the PCs learn that the attack left an extraplanar scar. Expecting an even greater invasion the next solstice, the PCs must prepare to defeat Eshimka and end the threat forever.

RUNNING THE EVENT

The Solstice Scar accommodates varying House sizes (anything from 3 tables to 150 tables or more). The introduction and player mustering phases are built into the scenario. There is no requirement to have everyone seated before players actually begin the introduction, and Table GMs should be ready to start as soon as four or more players have been seated at their table.

For conveying data to larger numbers of tables, a projected display can help aid the House in having access to important information including art depictions of PCs locations, maps that illustrate travel across Avistan, and a gauge in each part showing how close the House is to earning a special benefit.

Glossary of Terms

The Solstice Scar uses several terms unique to the Pathfinder Society Special format as listed below. Each participant’s role in the event is outlined under the respective entry.

APL: This term indicates the Average Party Level for a participating table.

Courier: For larger events, the HQ Staff will need to provide some extra volunteers to wander among the tables and collect notes that report successes from the various tables.

House: All the PCs participating in the adventure across all subtiers.

HQ Staff: These are support personnel who tabulate results and handle player table assignments at the beginning. of the event. Members of the HQ Staff are responsible for managing the results of table actions during the event.

Overseer GM: This Game Master manages the timing, scoring, and flow of the event. In addition, she makes announcements about the amount of time remaining and events that impact the entire House, as well as presenting the opening and closing scenes for the adventure. The Overseer GM should have some means of signaling to the entire room, especially Table GMs, who are her liaisons to the players. This may be a bell or other auditory signal that can cut through the din of a room full of excited players, or it could be a visual signal like a flashing light or waving flag. The Overseer GM should inform all Table GMs what this signal is prior to the event’s start and ensure that they are all positioned to be able to see or hear it during the event.

The Overseer GM should take a count of how many tables are playing Subtier 10–11, as this affects when certain events trigger during Part 2 of the adventure.

Part: This event is broken into three separate segments. Within each part, each individual table can generally move through encounters at its own pace, but the entire House starts and ends each part simultaneously to ensure the stage of play remains synchronized across the entire House.

Runner: For smaller events (30 tables or fewer), each table should nominate one player to be a Runner. These players are responsible for delivering notes from their Table GMs to the HQ Staff and vice versa.

Table GM: These GMs each manage a single table of players. Tables are run exactly like one would run a standard Pathfinder Society table, with the following exceptions. Table GMs must follow the timing of the event as set by the Overseer GM. Whenever the Overseer GM announces the end of a part, that part is finished for all tables, and the Table GMs must follow the instructions for getting the PCs to the next part in the scenario. Likewise, if a Table GM has a group that finishes the part before the Overseer GM calls time, she should notify the Overseer GM; as time allows, either run an additional encounter or have the table take a short break before the next scene change.

Every Table GM should make a special note of her table's average party level (APL) as calculated in the Pathfinder Society Roleplaying Guild Guide. In addition to the Table GM determining the appropriate subtier to use for each encounter, the adventure sometimes uses the table’s APL to determine several important skill check and saving throw DCs.

Aid Tokens

During the event, it is possible for characters at one table to assist those at another with Aid Tokens. Each represents the assistance of allied Pathfinder agents who assist the PCs. The House should begin with a number of Aid Tokens equal to one-third (1/3) the number of tables, and the Overseer GM should distribute these at random to tables before beginning.

Once per encounter, any character at a table can use an Aid Token to assist the group in one of the ways described below. Once a table uses an Aid Token, one of the players then passes the Aid Token to a neighboring table for them to use. A table can only benefit from one token per encounter. Because there are a limited number of Aid Tokens, hoarding one means that somebody else doesn’t get to use it.

If a table receives an Aid Token and doesn’t need its benefits, they’re encouraged to boost its potency by expending some of their own resources or attempting a skill check. Boosting an Aid Token, including attempting a skill check, is part of passing that Aid Token to another table. A table can neither retry such a skill check nor boost an Aid Token more than once before passing it to another table. A table may boost a token even while in combat without taking any in-round actions; the scenario assumes the aid was granted before that encounter began. Players should be encouraged to write their PC name down next to the boosted effect along with any other relevant information. Using a boosted effect consumes the boost; the player should erase the boost information from the Aid Token.

Some Aid Token benefits may only be used if already boosted by another table. An Aid Token’s benefits vary based on the table’s subtier, and these benefits can take one of the following forms.

Allied Offensive: A Pathfinder agent strikes a creature at the same time as the PC, increasing the damage dealt by one attack by 1d8 points. In addition, after the attack, anyone attacking the target is considered to be flanking it until the beginning of the attacker’s next turn. In Sub tiers 5–6 and 7–8, this amount increases to 2d8 points. In Subtier 10–11, this amount increases to 3d8 points. To Boost: Succeed at an attack roll against an AC equal to an Average skill check. Boosted Effect: +1d8 points of damage.

Burst of Healing: A Pathfinder agent heals all of the PCs of id6 points of damage. In Sub tiers 5–6 and 7–8, the amount healed increases to 2d6 points. In Subtier 10–11, the amount healed increases to 3d6 points. To Boost: Expend one use of channel positive energy or cast one spell with the healing descriptor with a spell level greater than or equal to your APL/4, rounded up. A PC must cast this spell, not simply activate a wand or scroll. Boosted Effect: +2d6 points of damage healed.

Timely Inspiration: A Pathfinder agent provides the effects of a bard’s inspire courage bardic performance for 3 rounds. In Sub tiers 1–2 and 3–4, the competence bonus is +1. In Sub tiers 5–6 and 7–8, the competence bonus increases to +2. In Subtier 10–11, the competence bonus increases to +3. To Boost: Expend 3 rounds of bardic performance or similar ability. Boosted Effect: Increase the competence bonus by 1.

Provide Knowledge (must be boosted): Gain the benefits of a Knowledge skill check or Spellcraft skill check used to identify a magical item; the type and difficulty (Easy, Average or Hard) depend on the table granting the benefit. To Boost: Succeed at a Knowledge check of your choice, the result of the check (Easy, Average or Hard) should be noted on the Aid Token.

Provide Spellcasting (must be boosted): Gain the benefits of a beneficial spell cast by an ally as listed on the Aid Token. To Boost: Cast one of the following spells and note your PC’s name and caster level on the Aid Token: lesser restoration, neutralize poison, remove curse, or remove disease. Only these spells may be granted. Expending resources that produce the effects of these spells, such as a paladin’s mercy class feature, may also grant these benefits.

Timeline

The Solstice Scar should take less than 5 hours. Each section transitions automatically after a certain amount of time passes. In general, each part should take no longer than 90 minutes, allowing approximately 30 minutes total for transitions, mustering, and filling out Chronicle sheets.

Individual parts have more detailed information about their time breakdown.
PART 1: CHAOS AT THE MUSEUM

Medda and her warriors have scouted the Blakros Museum. They discovered Ivvora’s hilt on display on the 2nd floor and planned to come back for it once the museum closed. After sunset, they crept up, forced open the front door and headed upstairs under cover of obsuring mist.

Medda planned on taking Ivvora’s hilt and leaving right away, but the museum’s security features activated and blocked their escape. During the fight, the resonant power imbued in Ivvora’s hilt animated the Shining Crusade relics nearby, in some cases even awakening the spirits of long-dead crusaders. These haunted objects now run rampant through the museum, clashing with the site’s defenses and tearing apart the building. Nigel Aldain, the museum’s curator, tried to disable the security and calm the roused spirits, but his efforts couldn’t quell the phenomena. He immediately sought out help at the Grand Lodge.

Beginning Part 1

As the event begins, players have approximately 15 minutes for mustering, during which they may introduce themselves and learn about their team. Once the players arrive at the table, the Table GM should read or paraphrase the following.

The fourth and final day of training has come to a close at the Grand Lodge of Absalom, heralding the end of this year’s Torchbearing. Pathfinders the world over attend this annual symposium to share their knowledge, teach each other new skills, and reinforce their connections across the Inner Sea and beyond. To celebrate the end of festivities, the lodge has hosted a grand banquet in the visiting agents’ honor. A refreshing winter breeze blows through an open window, flickering torches and sending papers scattering. The smell of freshly baked desserts fills the air while initiates clear away the remnants of the first course.

If any of the PCs is a member of the Restful Pathfinders’ Lounge (by possessing the vanity of the same name from page 61 of Pathfinder Campaign Setting: Pathfinder Society Field Guide), they can attend a special private banquet that grants that PC the benefits of hero’s feast for the duration of Part 1. Each PC with this vanity can invite one guest (such as another PC or an animal companion) to gain the benefits, too.

The Three Masters, along with other notable Pathfinders, taught a variety of classes, from Golarion’s history to spellcasting techniques, and ran obstacle courses and a triathlon. Have the PCs describe the subject about which they learned the most, filling in details with your favorite Pathfinder agent. Each PC should choose one skill. For the duration of this adventure, that PC either treats it as a class skill or gains a +1 bonus on checks with that skill if it was already a class skill.

Diplomacy (gather information) or Knowledge (local)

Based on the result of their skill check, the PCs might know more about the Torchbearing. They learn all of the information whose DC is equal to or less than the result of their check.

15+: The Three Masters use the event to keep an eye out for particularly talented agents that embody the Pathfinder Society ideals: Explore, Report, and Cooperate.

20+: At the end of the Torchbearing, the most exemplary agents are publicly recognized and given special wayfinders.

25+: Sometimes Pathfinder agents disappear for hours during the course of events. Rumors suggest they are brought before The Decemvirate, but no one can agree on why.

Once the PCs have settled in, the Table GM should read or paraphrase the following, then give the players Player Handout #1.

As the Pathfinders conclude the dessert course, a small origami swan flutters through the room and lands on the center of the table. In moments, it unfolds itself into a crisp and creaseless piece of paper.

After receiving the missive, the PCs might recall some information based on their studies and experiences.

Knowledge (nobility)

Based on the result of their Knowledge (nobility) check, the PCs might know more about the Blakros Family. They learn all of the information whose DC is equal to or less than the result of their checks.

10+: The Blakros are one of the wealthiest and most well-known merchant families from Taldor. They own a variety of businesses with interests all over the Inner Sea.

15+: For years, the Pathfinder Society and the Blakros family have been allies, even if only at arm’s length. Occasionally the family invites notable Pathfinders to one of its high-society affairs.

20+: The Blakros family has been involved with some shady organizations during its rise to power, including the Onyx Alliance and House Thrune.

Knowledge (local)

Based on the result of their Knowledge (local) checks, the PCs might know more about the Blakros Museum. They learn all of the information whose DC is equal to or less than the result of their checks.

10+: The Blakros Museum is located in the Wise District, owned by the Blakros family, and curated by Nigel Aldain (a former Pathfinder). It is open to the public when an exhibit is on display. Though the exterior of the building is ugly and squat, patrons marvel at how much bigger it is on the inside.
The museum has been closed for the past several months, ramping up for a huge exhibit, “Legacy of the Shining Crusade,” opening next week.

Rumors suggest that shadow magic makes the inside of the museum larger. A few years ago the inside changed drastically, which drew the curiosity of many in Absalom.

Ralzeros the Overwatched was a powerful wizard who owned the building before the Blakros Family. Evidence suggests he cursed the building on his death. The number of accidents and strange events that occur there would seem to support that rumor.

Knowledge (local)
Based on the result of their Knowledge (local) checks, the PCs might know more about Nigel Aldain. They learn all of the information whose DC is equal to or less than the result of their checks.

10+: Though the relationship between the Society and Nigel is often strained, they remain steadfast allies. Nigel often collaborates with the Society, loaning artifacts and trading information. He has obsessively researched the Shining Crusade for the past several months.

15+: Nigel is a former Pathfinder who resigned after marrying Dhrami Blakros; the position of curator was part of his marriage contract.

20+: Nigel’s museum has suffered many mishaps since he became curator, which the Society has regularly helped clean up. Nigel still tries to distance himself from the Society and act independently, but when trouble befalls the museum, he often turns to the Society for help.

25+: Recently, Nigel has spent a fortune in security for the museum, particularly in magical protections from the Arcanamirium and Golemworks in Magnimar.

A Friend in Need
After mustering is complete and the House is ready to begin, the Overseer GM should read the following aloud.

The front doors of Skyreach burst open with a loud crack. Venture-Captain Ambrus Valsin strides to the edge of the platform, with a slender elf dressed in practical but expensive clothing trailing meekly behind. The red-faced venture-captain addresses the crowd in a booming voice. “Pathfinders, I regret interrupting the festivities, but we have something of a situation. Approximately twenty minutes ago, unknown forces invaded the Blakros Museum. Fortunately for everyone involved, the Torchbearing is about cooperation and helping our colleagues, so let’s think of this less as an inconvenience and more as an opportunity to practice what we preach.”

The elf, Nigel, exhales sharply, then speaks, “Now, Ambrus, I’ve spent a king’s ransom fortifying the museum from all sorts of invaders: sentinels from the Golemworks, magical wards from the Arcanamirium, and even contracts for guard beasts, both magical and mundane—spared no expense. I didn’t want to come here, but I’ve got no choice.”

“Someone broke into my museum and set off the magical protections! I was preserving priceless Shining Crusade pieces for our new exhibit when the first alarm activated. I sent for district guards and went to investigate, but by the time I arrived, the thieves had already locked themselves in my study. They somehow caused the Shining Crusade relics to fly around the museum and attack my sentinels. Everything is going haywire! The magical traps started to target me, the sentinels are not responding to my commands, and—”

Valsin holds out a hand to steady the increasingly agitated elf. “The last you knew, the thieves were still in your study?” Nigel nods. “Very well. Pathfinders: the Seekers should prepare to teleport directly into the Blakros study—”

“That won’t work,” Nigel interrupts, “The study is magically sealed. After that dreadful Numerian exhibit, I turned it into a magical safe room. The robbers must have figured out how to activate it; no one can get in or out while the wards hold. I can work on breaking the wards, but meanwhile my sentinels are smashing up the collection. Some of those priceless relics are on loan from your own Society lodges, so helping me is really helping yourselves.”

“Fine.” Ambrus Valsin takes a deep breath and then turns to the assembled Pathfinders. “Pathfinders, go to the Blakros Museum, secure any relics you can, disable the security systems, and apprehend the looters if possible. Stay safe.”

In this Part, the PCs have 55 minutes to fight their way through the first floor, find a way up to the second floor, and to try and disable the wards and magical traps. After 55 minutes has passed, the magical wards on the third floor dissipate; PCs should head there directly to confront Medda and her Twinhorn warriors.

Table GM Instructions
The PCs need to find a way into the museum and discover what is going on. They can stay on the first floor or travel... directly up to the second floor, effectively allowing the PCs to perform the encounters in areas A and B in any order. Wards around the third floor (area C) prevent the PCs from entering as if the area were magically protected against teleportation, ethereal intrusion, and brute force.

Scouting: If the PCs would like to scout out the various locations, they may do so, but any scouting PCs must succeed at an Average Stealth check or be discovered and immediately trigger the next encounter. Other PCs arrive 1d3 rounds later. If the scouts’ Stealth check is successful, they can examine an encounter area and its creatures without being noticed. If the PCs desire, they can then evade that encounter entirely and seek out a different one.

Final Encounters: Parts 1 and 3 of this adventure conclude with a final encounter during the last 30–35 minutes of that part. When the Overseer GM announces that the final encounter area is accessible, endeavor to transition the group to that encounter within the next several minutes. It’s okay to wrap up an ongoing encounter with some quick narrative in order to give the group plenty of time with the final encounter.

When the Overseer GM announces this transition, she also notes that the High Stress, Subdued Defenses, or Peace in the Museum condition is in effect. The effects of these effects appear in the Kellids Under Stress sidebar on page 16.

Reporting: For most encounters the PCs successfully overcome (through combat, negotiation, or otherwise), the Table GM should send a Runner to report one success to the Overseer GM. Rarely, an encounter might ask the GM not to report any success but instead move to another encounter. In Part 1, PCs can pursue a more challenging encounter by attempting to disable the magical wards around the museum, represented by the encounter in area A3. After successfully completing this encounter, the Table GM should send a Runner to report a special success to the Overseer GM. Each encounter has a Reporting entry at the very end that notes how to handle successes.

If the PCs kill Medda in encounter C, report a Kellid Slain to the Overseer GM. Once enough tables report this event (one-third, rounded up), the Overseer GM announces the Tragic Death effect, which lasts until the end of the scenario.

Failing Wards: This condition triggers and affects the entire House once enough tables have reported special successes. In the Guard Creatures (area A2) and Trapped Twinhorns (area C5) encounters, reduce the DC of Bluff, Diplomacy, Handle Animal, and Intimidate checks by one step (Hard to Average and Average to Easy). All creatures in the Automated Defenses (area B1) and Magical Wards (area A3) encounters take a –1 penalty to AC and on attack rolls, saving throws, skill checks, and ability checks.

Tragic Death: This condition triggers and affects the entire House when enough tables have reported Kellid Slain instances (one-third, rounded up). Adjust the scenario’s read-aloud text as indicated to compensate for Medda’s absence. When in doubt, Anok can stand in for her involvement. At the end of Part 1 she is restored to life, but she never quite trusts the Pathfinders.

Overseer GM Instructions

During Part 1, the Overseer GM tallies reported successes, special successes, and Kellid Slain notifications. The Overseer GM is also responsible for making announcements to the House, tracking time, and managing the transitions between Parts 1, 2, and 3.

After 55 Minutes: Once the House has had 55 minutes in which to explore areas A and B, the Overseer GM should make the following announcement to indicate that area C is now accessible.

After a loud crack and a ripple of arcane energy, silence falls across the museum as the construct guards freeze in place and haunted relics drop to the ground. Nigel’s voice rings out, magically projected throughout the museum: “We’ve disabled the magical security measures. Since we haven’t found the thieves yet, they must be hiding in my third-story study. Please subdue them; they have much to answer for!”

Additionally, immediately read aloud one of the following three entries based on the number of successes the House has reported (see the Successes section below).

Successes: The number of successes reported affects which extra condition is in effect after 55 minutes when the House can enter area C. If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or less than 1.5 × the number of tables, the High Stress condition is in play. If the House has reported a number of successes greater than 1.5 × the number of tables and less than 2.5 × the number of tables, the Subdued Defenses condition is in play. If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or greater than 2.5 × the number of tables, the Peace in the Museum condition is in play.
For the High Stress condition, read the following aloud.

The ongoing cacophony of clockwork defenders, yowling beasts, and exploding traps nearly drowns out Nigel Aldain’s voice. To those hiding on the third floor, the rest of the museum sounds like a war zone.

Table GMs: the High Stress condition is in effect, and the way to area C is now open. Please move to that encounter area swiftly.

For the Subdued Defenses condition, read the following aloud.

The clatter of a Pathfinder toppling a clockwork defender garbles some of Nigel Aldain’s announcement, and there are still intermittent sounds of battle throughout the museum. There’s no question that the Society’s efforts have quelled the worst of the trouble, and hopefully that will reassure whoever hides on the third floor.

Table GMs: the Subdued Defenses condition is in effect, and the way to area C is now open. Please move to that encounter area swiftly.

For the Peace in the Museum condition, read the following aloud.

Nigel Aldain’s announcement echoes through a museum littered with shattered clockwork and toppled exhibits. There’s no question that the Pathfinders have quelled the building’s defenses, and perhaps the peaceful silence will set whoever hides on the third floor at ease.

Table GMs: the Peace in the Museum condition is in effect, and the way to area C is now open. Please move to that encounter area swiftly.

Special Successes: Runners report special successes following the successful completion of the encounter in area A3, and these contribute to activating the Failing Wards condition. Once the House has reported a number of special successes equal to one-third (1/3) the number of tables, rounded up, read the following aloud.

A high-pitched buzz pervades the museum, rising in frequency to the point of being inaudible. A moment later, a rolling boom echoes through the museum like thunder, and the glowing wards around the museum begin to fade.

Table GMs, the Fail Wards condition is in effect.

Kellid Slain: Runners report a Kellid Slain anytime a table kills the Kellid spiritualist Medda, and these contribute to activating the Tragic Death condition. Once the House has reported a number of Kellid Slain instances equal to one-third (1/3) the number of tables, rounded up, read the following aloud.

A terrible scream fills the air, echoed by a ghastly, ethereal wail. Table GMs, the Tragic Death condition is in effect.

Concluding Part 1: This part should end after 90 minutes. See the Concluding Part 1 section on page 18.

A1. THE MUSEUM ENTRANCE

As the PCs approach the museum, read or paraphrase the following.

Dozens of Wise District guards surround the Blakros Museum. The sergeant nods to Ambrus Valsin as he approaches, a subtle smirk dancing across the venture-captain’s face. The museum itself is alight with swirling whorls of color and the sounds of metal and stone clashing. Occasionally, brief flashes of light burst from the front entrance, illuminating a toppled banner that says “Legacy of the Shining Crusade.”

The PCs may take their time to scout out encounters inside the museum (areas A1 or A2). If they’re up for a challenge, they may attempt to disable the magical wards (area A3). The sergeant of the Learned Guard is Svaralk of Asleifar (N human middle-aged barbarian 3/rogue 2), a broad-shouldered Ulfen man who retired to Absalom after serving in Grand Prince Stavian III’s Ulfen Guard. In his seven years of service to the city, he’s responded to numerous catastrophes at the Blakros Museum, though none quite so dramatic as this. He has ordered his subordinates to withdraw and form a perimeter after an initial attempt to quell the animated relics failed. Even so, Svaralk is somewhat bemused by the scene, perceiving it as further proof of the museum’s reputation for trouble.

Svaralk can provide the PCs an overview of the museum’s layout and identify that there are animated relics, guard animals, and clockwork creatures skirmishing with each other within. After Nigel Aldain harangued him for dereliction of duty in not immediately retaking the museum, Svaralk’s in no rush to sacrifice lives until the competing creatures inside wear each other down. He doesn’t hold this outburst against Nigel, recognizing that the elf is rightfully concerned—albeit rather precious—about his exhibit.

In the event the PCs are really struggling in this Part of the adventure, Svaralk can provide them three potions of cure moderate wounds as a professional courtesy. He considers the cost negligible, given the fortune he earned as part of the Ulfen Guard.

A1. Haunted by Memories

Under a sign that reads “The Shining Armory,” priceless Shining Crusade artifacts displayed on pedestals creak and move by some unseen force. Eerie light seems to dart between the objects while the din of a raging battle echoes throughout the chamber. The central feature is a low, artificial hill atop which stand two stuffed owlbears surrounded by shattered undead foes. Each of the beasts wears chainmail barding and an orange-and-black caparison depicting a stylized owlbear. A dead man dressed in furs lies on the floor before a suit of full-plate armor.

When Medda and her Twinhorn brethren came under attack by the museum’s defenses, Ivorra’s hilt called out to the Shining Crusade relics on display and stirred the psychic energy held within each object. The warrior is from the Twinhorn following and was slain by an animated longsword.

Creatures: The Shining Crusade attracted soldiers of all stripes, from Taldor’s official armies and hedge knights to independent mercenary corps. The Order of the Sable Owlbear joined the crusade late but made a lasting name for itself on the field of battle, and Nigel Aldain has gathered dozens of relics from the mercenary company—including two stuffed owlbears prepared by some of the corps’ descendants. The lingering resonance of these relics have infused them with their long-dead owners’ will, animating them to fight all comers.

A plaque at the base of the artificial hill notes the company’s name and lists some of its accomplishments, and a PC who succeeds at an Average Knowledge (nobility) check can recognize the group based on the owlbears’ caparisons.

A2. Guard Creatures

Long shadows cast by ruined displays and broken furniture litter the floor. A humanoid-shaped figure made of shattered clockwork lies slumped over a bench. Above, an elaborately painted sign reads “Crusader’s Chronicles.”

Nigel rents well-trained guard dogs to supplement his magical security. He has also convinced dweomercats to guard the museum at night, earning their service in exchange for information about unusual magical discoveries.

One of the clockwork servants (see area B1) mistook the guard creatures for invaders and began attacking them; they tore it apart, and it lies here, useless.

Creatures: In Subtier 1–2 and 3–4, the PCs come across startled guard dogs that lash out at any creature that comes near them; treat them as hostile. With a successful Hard Handle Animal check or Average wild empathy check, a PC can calm the dogs down and avert a fight. A subsequent successful Average Handle Animal check allows the PCs to lead the dogs out of the museum and away from harm.

In Subtier 5–6, 7–8 and 10–11, the PCs cross paths with one or more of the dweomercats on guard duty; they have remained hidden, fascinated by the interaction between the artificial guards and the haunted relics. The dweomercat decides to interrogate the PCs, both curious about the mayhem and attempting to do its duty. If the PCs succeed at a Hard Bluff or Diplomacy check—only Average if the PCs speak Sylvan—then the dweomercat decides not to attack them and can describe some of the other defenses in the museum. If the PCs fail to convince the dweomercat they are there to help, the cat attacks, believing the PCs are a threat to the museum.

A3. Magical Wards

Thousands of glowing glyphs form a protective shell around the outside of the museum, casting a sparkling aura of light that bounces off the fountain’s waters.

Nigel commissioned these wards from the Arcanamirium to capture intruders alive for questioning, but he didn’t foresee their magic interfering with the constructs he purchased from Magnimar’s Golemworks. Once the constructs became aggressive, the magical runes stopped responding to Nigel’s command word to deactivate them.

Creatures: The magical runes that protect the museum act like intelligent swarms, targeting violent creatures in the area. Though they’re quite resilient to damage, doing enough physical harm to them causes them to lapse into a regenerative stasis for about a minute before they resume protecting the museum. The runes also have control over the museum’s magical traps; the activation area is a 20-foot-by-20-foot space centered on a swarm.

Due to the swarms’ resilient nature, the easiest way to permanently shut them down is to disable the runes. A PC that is adjacent to the runes can attempt to shut them down by performing an Average Disable Device, Knowledge (arcana), Linguistics, Spellcraft or Use Magic Device check. It takes 10 successes to destroy a swarm, and after 5 successes, reduce the swarm’s distraction DC by 4. If a PC’s skill check result would succeed at a Hard skill check DC, the PC earns two successes instead. Casting dispel magic, erase, or a similar effect on the swarm earns a number of successes equal to the spell’s level (minimum 2).

Failing one of the Average DC skill checks above reduces the reset time of each trap by 1 round (maximum one reduction per round).

Traps: Nigel installed magical traps all around the museum. The magical rune constructs control the traps, so they cannot be disarmed normally.

B. UPPER FLOORS

Many of the smaller exhibits and relics are on the second floor. This is also where the museum has several offices and classrooms for holding lectures.

Automated Defenses

Gears, glass, and chunks of wax litter the polished wood floor under a sign that proclaims “Scars of the Lich.” The corpse of a Kellid warrior lies in a pool of blood, her furs soaked through. A constant ticking and whirring sound echoes in this area.

Nigel sent a literal cartful of coins to the Golemworks in Magnimar for reliable security constructs that could double as waitstaff or art pieces. During operating hours the clockwork constructs clean, assist guests, and help patrons feel safe. The clockwork golem acts as a beautiful clockwork partition wall while the wax golems act as art pieces bedecked in replica Shining Crusade regalia.

However, Nigel didn’t have the Golemworks mages work with the Arcanamirium wardsmiths, and their magic is reacting poorly; none of the command words are working on the golems and they see every moving creature as an immediate threat.

Creatures: The constructs attack all creatures and do not respond to shut down commands.

C. CONFRONTING THE INTRUDERS

The magical defenses Nigel Aldain referenced protect the third floor, preventing the PCs from traveling there until the Overseer GM announces that it is accessible.

Trapped Twinhorns

The Table GM should read or paraphrase the following.

The mahogany walls and domed, plaster ceiling both show signs of heavy damage. Most of the luxurious furniture and the crystal chandelier are intact. The contents of cabinets and bookcases lie strewn about the floor. A small wooden panel near the door hangs open, revealing an arcane sigil covered in scorch marks.
Kellids Under Stress

The Twinhorn Kellids have been trapped here for some time, and the chaos they hear outside set them on edge. The noisier and more violent the museum sounds are when the PCs approach, the more stressed and aggressive the Kellids are. This is represented by one of three possible conditions that the Overseer GM announces when area C becomes accessible.

High Stress: The PCs must succeed at two Hard Bluff or Diplomacy checks to calm the Kellids in the Trapped Twinhorns encounter. The Kellids and Anok gain a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls, damage rolls, and saving throws. In Subtiers 7-8 and 10-11, increase this bonus to +2.

Subdued Defenses: Run the encounters in area C as written.

Peace in the Museum: The PCs need only succeed at an Average Bluff or Diplomacy check to calm the Kellids in the Trapped Twinhorns encounter.

After the Twinhorns obtained Ivora’s hilt, they fled from the construct guardians into this tower room. One of the Kellids found and activated the magical sigil near the exit. Though he was hoping to lock the door, he instead activated a sort of magical panic room, preventing anything from getting inside, but also preventing them from getting out. When Nigel and the Pathfinders finally disabled the wards, the arcane sigil near the door sparked and sizzled. The Twinhorns tested the door, realized they could escape, and then started to gather their gear. In shorting out the wards, the Society inadvertently weakened several other safeguards that suppressed evil relics stored throughout the museum. Upon finally breaking free during the encounter The Devil’s Due, these evils manifest as fiends.

Once the PCs enter the room, the Table GM should read or paraphrase the following.

A Kellid woman dressed in furs with intricate scars all over her body steps forward. She holds a hand up and says, “Stay back. We are members of the Twinhorn following, and we have only come to retrieve what was stolen from us.”

A towering figure steps forward; his translucent red form is that of a man clad in heavy armor and wielding twin warhammers. “Medda, they must be in league with the thieves; they should die for crossing us.” The man’s voice sounds hollow and unnaturally loud, and as he speaks, the chandelier glows with a dull light.

The woman, Medda, puts a hand on the figure’s arm and says, “Maybe we should give them a chance to explain themselves, Anok.”

Creatures: Medda and her Kellid warriors are eager to leave, and they don’t wish to fight the PCs; however, they attack if not reassured and provided a means to escape. Anok is the manifested phantom of an ancient Kellid warrior bound to Medda. The PCs have a chance to learn about the Twinhorns’ stolen artifact and have a chance to befriend them. With a successful Hard Bluff or Diplomacy check, the PCs can convince the Twinhorns to leave peacefully and talk with Nigel to find a peaceful solution. Otherwise, the Twinhorn warriors feel there is no way to escape without violence, and any offer by the PCs is trickery. Note that the combat only lasts until Anok is slain or Medda is reduced to half her hit points (see Development on page 17).

Below are likely questions the PCs may have. Medda’s speech is forcefully calm, for she suspects treachery but is hoping the PCs see reason. Anok’s voice is deep, booming, and hollow. He assumes the PCs are treacherous and would rather fight. If Medda dies, Anok manifests as an unfettered phantom and can answer all of the questions below, though he does so more aggressively than Medda.

Who are the Twinhorn following? Medda responds, “We are from the northern lands—the Realm of the Mammoth Lords to you southerners. Our following, or tribe, has been searching for our stolen heritage for months.”

What was stolen from you? Medda responds, “These Blakros people stole our most precious heirloom.” Medda retrieves a bundle of bloody bandages, then unwraps it to reveal a dagger hilt with only the fragment of a black blade. “It belonged to Ivora, a champion of Vildeis who vanquished the great black evil from our land over 900 years ago. We kept it safe until the Blakros agents stole it three months ago.”

How do you know it was them? Anok responds, “They came into our camp asking about Ivora. Medda gave them shelter and told Ivora’s story, but we would not part with the hilt. The next morning the hilt and the Blakros agents were gone. We tracked it here, to this building.”

Who is Ivora? Anok replies, “She was a scourge against evil, a true friend, a dwarf, and a devotee of Vildeis. Choose your own answer.”

Is that a ghost? Anok growls, “I’m a phantom, not a ghost. I am Anok, and I protect the guardian of Ivora’s hilt, Medda.”

Who are you, Medda? Medda opens her mouth to answer, but Anok steps forward defensively and proudly announces, “She is the guardian of Ivora’s hilt, passed from keeper to keeper for generations—or for her, from parent to child. She is the first evening’s daughter in decades,” he boasts, earning him a withering look from Medda before he adds, “And it is she who can sense and wield the hilt’s power properly.”

What is an evening’s daughter? Medda shoots Anok a scolding glare before explaining. “An evening’s child is one who realizes and expresses their true identity later in life. I am an evening’s daughter because when I was born, my tribe mistook me for a male child. My connection to our ancestral spirits has helped me transform in body, not just soul. As you are strangers, I would rather leave it at that.” Anok pales to a rosy hue before muttering an apology: “I misspoke, Medda. I forget that few are as open as I am about one’s past lives.”

Can you prove the hilt is yours? Medda replies, “It is bound to me.” She grasps the hilt tightly, then her eyes begin to glow with a brilliant white light as her scars begin to seep thin rivulets of blood. “Does that answer your question?”

Why not just ask for it back? Medda answers, “We did. That Nigel man refused. He said he did not honor ‘seller’s remorse.’”

Why did you cause all that destruction downstairs? Anok responds, “When the metal men attacked us, Ivvora’s spirit called through the hilt to her allies’ armaments. She protects us, even now.”

If the PCs fight Medda, the chandelier falls at the beginning of the round after Anok is defeated or Medda is reduced to below half her hit points.

Reporting: Do not report successes to the Overseer GM. If Medda is killed, report a Kellid Slain to the Overseer GM.

The Devil’s Due

Creatures: As Medda and her companions gather their belongings, the fiendish influences left unshielded by the disabled wards break free, causing the chandelier to crash to the ground. A devil then manifests atop the wreckage. This is a rare fiend that Nigel had hoped to trade to a collector of pre-Thrune Chelish relics, and the outsider is furious. The appearance of a devil changes the Twinhorn warriors’ priorities. Medda asks the PCs for help in battling the fiend while she motions for her Kellid companions to stay clear of the devil. Anok aids the PCs in confronting the devil while Medda uses her magic to keep the PCs alive.

Hazard: When the chandelier falls into the 10 foot square in the center of the room, anyone caught under it takes 1d6 damage and is pushed back 5 feet; an Easy Reflex save negates the damage but not the forced movement.

Reporting: Do not report any successes to the Overseer GM.

CONCLUDING PART 1

As long as the Tragic Death effect is not in play, the Overseer GM reads the following once the chapter’s allotted time has ended, bringing this part of the adventure to a close.

The crowd of guards, onlookers, and concerned citizens outside the Blakros Museum quiets as Venture-Captain Ambrus Valsin approaches a woman clad in furs exiting the museum. “My Pathfinder agents tell me that you are Medda of the Twinhorn following, is that correct?”

“Yes, I speak for the following.” Medda glares at Nigel Aldain, “I have come to reclaim what is rightfully ours. His agents stole our most sacred relic after we refused to sell it. We have traveled through dangerous lands to claim it back, and still he refused—”

Valsin interjects, “Nigel, let us listen to her story and decide how to proceed. Medda, tell us about this relic. Why is it so important to you?”

Medda takes a deep breath. “Over 900 years ago, a powerful warrior named Ivorra came into our camp. She spoke of an angel named Vildeis who guided her hunt for a great dark evil she called Eshimka. Several of our scouts had recently disappeared, later found ripped into pieces. The elders insisted that we help banish this evil and ensure the safety of our following. They laid a trap for the evil spirit, luring it to our sacred standing stones on the winter solstice. There, Ivorra and the great dark evil, Eshimka, fought a mighty battle that raged for hours. Just as the night was darkest, Ivorra dealt Eshimka a telling blow, digging her dagger deep into its flesh. The creature tried to escape, but it only snapped off the blade and then collapsed on the center stone. The elders finished their ritual and destroyed it completely.

“Ivorra rested with us for the winter before departing to eradicate more evil from the world, but not before leaving us the hilt of her weapon.” Medda withdraws a bundle of bloody cloth from her bag, then unwraps it to reveal a small hilt with a bloody fragment of black metal. “She told us to bring the hilt back to the standing stones every year at the winter solstice to keep evil away. We’ve had to travel for so long to retrieve the hilt, I’m afraid we won’t make it back in time for the solstice. Please, let me leave now.”

Ambrus Valsin contemplates Medda’s story for a moment, then nods, his brow furrowed. “Nigel, you should send for the Blakros agents who ‘obtained’ the hilt and hear what they have to say. Medda, I’m going to send as many Pathfinder agents as you deem necessary to travel with you and your following. I want to ensure we return this relic to its proper place.” Nigel starts to protest, but Valsin cuts him off. “Nigel, you wanted my help; you are getting it. I’m helping you fix a mistake your agents made. As for your museum,” Valsin takes a moment to survey the heavily damaged museum, “I’m told most of the damage was done by your own security, not Medda and her following.

“Pathfinders, prepare to head north to the Realm of the Mammoth Lords.”

If the Tragic Death effect is in play, the Overseer GM should read the following instead:

The crowd of guards, onlookers, and concerned citizens outside the Blakros Museum quiets as a semi-transparent man strides slowly up to Venture-Captain Ambrus Valsin. “I am Anok of the Twinhorn following. You are in charge here, is that correct?”

“Yes, I speak for the Pathfinder Society. Why have you invaded the museum?” Valsin asks, a slight quiver in his voice.

Anok begins to glow a bright red, “I have come to reclaim what is rightfully ours.” He then points to Nigel Aldain. “His agents stole our most sacred relic after we refused to sell it. We have traveled through dangerous lands to reclaim it, and still he refused—”

Valsin interjects, “Nigel, let us listen to his story and decide how to proceed. Anok, tell us about this relic. Why is it so important to you?”

Anok grits his ectoplasmic teeth, then begins: “Over 900 years ago, an incredible warrior named Ivvora came into our camp. She spoke of an angel named Vildeis who guided her hunt for a great dark evil she called Eshimka. Several of our scouts had recently disappeared, later found ripped into pieces. We elders insisted that we help banish this evil and ensure the safety of our following. We laid a trap for the evil spirit, luring it to our sacred standing stones on the winter solstice. There, Ivvora and the great dark evil, Eshimka, fought an epic battle that raged for hours. Just as the night was darkest, Ivvora dealt Eshimka a mighty blow, digging her dagger deep into its flesh. The creature tried to escape, but only snapped off the blade and then collapsed on the center stone. The druids finished their ritual and destroyed it completely.

“Ivvora lived with us for a year before departing to eradicate more evil from the world, but not before leaving me the hilt of her weapon.” A nearby Kellid warrior hands Anok a bundle of bloody cloth, and he then unwraps it to reveal a small hilt with a bloody fragment of black metal. “As she instructed, we brought the hilt back to the standing stones every year at the winter solstice to keep evil away. We’ve had to travel for so long to retrieve the hilt, I’m afraid we won’t make it back in time for the solstice. Please, let me leave now.”

Ambrus Valsin contemplates Anok’s story for a moment, then nods, his brow furrowed. “Nigel, you should send for the Blakros agents who ‘obtained’ the hilt and hear what they have to say. Anok, I’m going to send as many Pathfinder agents as you deem necessary to travel with you and your following. I want to ensure we return this relic to its proper place.” Nigel starts to protest, but Valsin cuts him off. “Nigel, you wanted my help; you are getting it. I’m helping you fix a mistake your agents made. As for your museum,” Valsin takes a moment to survey the heavily damaged museum, “I’m told most of the damage was done by your own security, not Anok and his following.

Anok takes a step forward. “What about my fallen companions? Medda is dead; she is the rightful bearer of Ivvora’s hilt—”

Nigel interjects, “That can be fixed.”

With a sidelong look to Nigel, Valsin turns to Anok, “What my companion means to say is, he will pay to get your friend raised if her spirit is willing. Pathfinders, prepare to head north to the Realm of the Mammoth Lords.”

With that, the Overseer GM should announce that Part 1 of the adventure has concluded and that PCs begin the next chapter fully rested. This is a good time to provide a short break before beginning Part 2.
PART 2: IVVORA’S PATH
To begin Part 2, the Overseer GM should read or paraphrase the following.

Medda and Ambrus Valsin discuss long into the night how the Society might help the Twinhorn following. By the morning they have concluded that while teleportation magic might take the Kellids and Pathfinders as far as Lastwall, Medda insists that Ivvora’s hilt has lost some of its spiritual strength since being stolen. She believes the only way to restore its power is to walk the same path that Ivvora took into the Twinhorn’s land after the Shining Crusade—and that path leads straight through the Hold of Belkzen, an unforgiving land controlled by orcs!

Society mages gather to transport small groups at a time to Lastwall, and from there, the convoy of Kellids, Pathfinders, and supply wagons set off north. For all their brutal reputation, the orcs have become somewhat more welcoming of caravans at the urging of Grask Uldeth, one of the strongest orc chieftains and the ruler of the de facto capital Urgir. Those who stop at the Table of Ralock can purchase safe passage in the form of special tokens from tribal representatives. It remains to be seen whether the Pathfinders can secure enough.

Table GM Instructions
First, the PCs must find a way to earn enough tribal tokens to allow them safe passage through Belkzen in the Securing Passage encounter. After about 20 minutes, the Overseer GM should indicate that it is time to move to the encounters in areas D, E, F, and G, where the PCs fight an army of orcs intent on destroying their caravan. This battle continues until the end of Part 2. If the PCs want a greater challenge, they can seek out the Orc Leaders encounter (area G).

Reporting: During the Securing Passage encounter, do not report any successes to the Overseer GM; simply track which representatives’ tokens the PCs acquire. During the encounters in the rest of Part 2, report each encounter the PCs overcome, sending a Runner to report one success to the Overseer GM. In Part 2, PCs can pursue a more challenging encounter by confronting the orc leaders, represented by the encounter in area G. After successfully completing this encounter, the Table GM should send a Runner to report a special success to the Overseer GM. Each encounter has a Reporting entry at the very end that notes how to handle successes.

Scattered Leaders: This condition triggers and affects the entire House once enough tables (one-sixth, rounded up) have reported special successes. All humanoid enemy creatures must succeed at an Easy Will save or immediately become shaken for 1 minute. Additionally, all humanoid enemies attempt to flee combat if reduced to half their hit points or fewer.

Overseer GM Instructions

During Part 2, the Overseer GM tallies reported successes and special successes. The Overseer GM is also responsible for making announcements to the House, tracking time, and managing the transitions between Parts 1, 2, and 3.

After 20 Minutes: Once the House has had about 20 minutes in which to secure tokens in the Securing Passage encounter, the Overseer GM should conclude that encounter by reading the following aloud.

Having traveled for more than a week through the harsh lands of Belkzen, the Twinhorn warriors grow excited as they come within a few days’ travel of their homeland. As the sun dips behind the Smokespur mountains, the sound of drums start to echo off the rocky canyon walls, starting slowly at first, but quickly increasing in pace. Medda turns from her lead position in the caravan and shouts “Look out! Ambush!” The drumming continues as a boulder hurtles from the mountain and lands on the lead wagon, sending splinters flying in all directions. Clouds of dust billow off the mountainside as dozens of orcs surge from the foothills and chant to the beat of the drums. Arrows and boulders begin to rain from the slopes.

Medda calls out, “Pathfinders, someone is willing to risk Uldeth’s ire by attacking us! I need some of you to meet their vanguard, others to guard the caravan, and a third group to take out their archers.”

Table GMs: this begins the Up The Flood Road encounters.

Special Successes: Runners report special successes following the successful completion of the encounter in area G, and these contribute to activating the Scattered Leaders condition. Once the House has reported a number of special successes equal to one-sixth (1/6) the number of tables, rounded up, read the following aloud.

The clash of weapons and sounds of battle are all that remain after the war drums stop beating. The orcs and giants look around in a moment of panic. Where they once fought with cruel determination, they now fight with worried desperation. Table GMs, the Scattered Leaders condition is now in effect.

Concluding Part 2: This part should end after 90 minutes. Tally the number of reported successes and see the Concluding Part 2 section on page 30.

SECURING PASSAGE

Table GMs should read or paraphrase the following.

Urgir, capital of Belkzen, land of the orcs, is a dusty city composed of a discordant combination of crumbling dwarven architecture and rickety shelters. Medda has asked that everyone try and obtain tribal tokens, which allow safe passage through Belkzen and protection from the orc tribes. She has purchased as many tribal tokens as she can with gold but still needs more to have enough for her following warriors and the Pathfinders.

The PCs have a chance to interact with one of several different orc tribe ambassadors. By impressing them or doing favors for them, the PCs can obtain the tribal tokens they need to continue traveling northward. They can interact with any of the following orcs and attempt up to two checks to impress or help them. Each check uses the skill check DCs from Table 2–1: Orc Representatives, even checks that are not skills, such as a combat maneuver check. If the PCs are successful, they earn a handful of tribal tokens and an additional benefit that lasts for the rest of the adventure. If the PCs fail two checks to influence an orc, that representative refuses to talk to the PCs any further. Half-orcs gain a +2 on all skill checks when interacting with these orcs. Creative solutions are encouraged, and Table GMs should grant a bonus from +1 to +4 on a check for good roleplaying. Certain spells or class abilities may warrant an automatic success, such as casting enthrall on Borbus. The PCs may run into any of the following orcs; the checks that can be used to influence them appear in Table 2–1.

Blenta (N female orc hunterACG 7): Found in the beast pits, Blenta is trying to train a particularly independent gorthek. She respects those who honor nature, granting all PCs with an animal companion or mount a +2 bonus on skill checks to influence her. Benefit: PCs gain a +1 on attack and damage rolls against animals and magical beasts for the rest of the adventure.

Borbos (CE male orc fighter 3): Bored with Urgir, Borbos is looking for some quality entertainment that isn’t just violence. He is also in need of a strong drink; PCs who ply him with alcohol gain a +4 bonus on checks to influence him. Benefit: Before attempting a Bluff, Escape Artist, Perform, or Sleight of Hand check during this adventure, a...
PC can decide to roll twice and take the higher result. Each PC can use this benefit once before the end of the adventure.

Bukog (LE male orc adept 2/expert 3): Though the Steel Eaters are supposed to be the best metalsmiths in all the clans, Bukog is having trouble impressing his peers. He’s willing to trade his tribal tokens to anyone who can show him innovative new crafting techniques. Benefit: Each PC gains a +5 bonus on any Day Job checks performed at the end of the adventure.

Gekgaro (CE male orc ranger 4): Sent by his Broken Spine brethren to Urgir to trade for maps and supplies, Gekgaro is having a difficult time finding a hospitable place for his tribe to camp for the winter. His clan holds a grudge against Pathfinders; any PC mentioning she is a Pathfinder or displaying a wayfinder takes a –4 penalty on skill checks to interact with him. PCs can attempt an Average Knowledge (geography) or Survival check or a Hard Knowledge (history or nature) check. Benefit: Each PC gains the Nimble Moves feat until the end of the adventure.

Graffa (NG female orc monk (martial artist UC) 4): Always looking to improve herself, Graffa is training on an obstacle course of her own design. She knows that competition brings out the best in her and is looking for someone to race. Because she respects other women who show strength, female PCs gain a +2 bonus on skill checks to influence Graffa. Benefit: Each PC chooses either the Acrobatic or Athletics feat and gains it for the rest of the adventure.

Kardook (CN male orc brawler 4/fighter 2): Kardook is in the sparing pen challenging other orcs to nonlethal combat. He hopes to learn new fighting techniques to improve his fighting style and teach his tribe. As a devout worshiper of Gorum, he appreciates anyone else sporting Gorum’s holy symbol or who mentions Gorum favorably, granting them a +2 bonus on skill checks to influence him. Any talk of the crusaders, paladins, or Lastwall in a positive way earns Kardook’s ire and a –4 penalty on skill checks to interact with him. Benefit: Each PC can use martial flexibility as a 1st-level brawler (Pathfinder RPG Advanced Class Guide 23) once before the end of the adventure; if a PC already has the martial flexibility class feature, she gains 1 additional use per day for the rest of the adventure.

Mirtgog (CE male orc rogue 5): Seeking illicit information to topple the ruling Empty Hand tribe, Mirtgog is willing to trade for information he can use against the Empty Hand and Chief Grask Uldeth. Benefit: At the start of an encounter, each PC can choose to gain the Precise Strike feat (Pathfinder RPG Advanced Player’s Guide 167) for the duration of the encounter. Each PC can use this benefit once before the end of the adventure.

UP THE FLOOD ROAD

As the Twinhorn warriors and PCs travel up the west side of the Flood Road, they skirt the foothills of the Smokespur Mountains. Here, the Ice Tooth orcs, their Black Sun mercenaries, and their giant allies have planned an ambush to strike any caravan daring to travel through the pass. Do not begin this section until the Overseer GM indicates to do so.

In the pitched battle, the PCs are needed in many places at once. It’s up to the players to decide where to focus their efforts: rushing forward to attack the charging orcs (area D), guarding the caravan and its supplies (area E), or eliminating the ranged attackers (area F). After defeating at least one other encounter, the PCs can also choose to confront the orc leadership for an even greater challenge (area G).

If captured and interrogated, the orcs admit that they are ignoring Chief Grask Uldeth’s intentions for peace and his tribal tokens. They feel that only by waging war can the orcs conquer Avistan, and they believe that Champion Gutrattle will lead their great armies.

D. Take Them Head On

A mass of orcs and their monstrous allies charges down the foothills. Remnants of an ancient dwarven outpost provide cover and an obstacle in their path; it is the most defensible position from which to confront the enemy vanguard.

The main mobile force is attacking directly, hoping to win with overwhelming numbers.

Creatures: Ice Tooth orcs and their trained animals attack in the vanguard of the orc army while their Black Sun allies bring giants into the fray. The orcs and their allies begin in the marked area, whereas the PCs begin along the southern edge of the map. The orcs shout battle cries like “For the glory of Gutrattle!” and “Death to the pinkskins!” as they advance.

E. Protect the Convoy

The most vulnerable part of the caravan travels near the base of a cliff where the sounds of ever-louder chanting echo from a shadowy cave.

Dozens of orcs have hidden in the cave to ambush the caravan while the vanguard attacks, hoping to steal food, water, and valuables from the caravan. The path ascends about 20 feet from south to north, with each cliff section being about 10 feet in height. These steep slopes have ample handholds and only require a successful DC 10 Climb check to scale.

Creatures: This encounter involves two groups of foes. The first are the raiders. In Subtiers 1–2, 3–4 and 5–6, these are orc warriors. In Subtier 7–8 and 10–11, they are orc thugs. At the beginning of each round, a new set of raiders appears along the north or east sides of the map at the GM’s discretion, and they always act on initiative count 10. The raiders are more interested in loot than combat; these orcs focus on stealing barrels of water and crates of food from the wagons and then head into the cave. Though they carry weapons and are able to make attacks of opportunity, they use their turns to evade danger and steal loot. They do not take actions to attack unless given no other choice (such as by compulsion magic). Once they make it back into the cave, the stolen goods are effectively irrecoverable. The barrels and crates are too large to conceal on an invisible creature, so invisible orcs carrying loot appear as floating barrels or crates to PCs that cannot see invisible creatures.

The second group consist of the primary enemies, which begin the encounter just inside the mouth of the cave. These orcs, half-orcs, and mercenary humans focus on distracting the PCs, stealing additional loot as the opportunity presents itself. They shout commands to the raiders such as “Get the water!” and “Steal all of their food!”

Five groups of raiders appear over the course of five rounds. The encounter ends once the PCs have defeated all foes on the map (even if there are additional groups of raiders yet to appear).

They must accept the next Aid Token offered to their table, erase any boosted benefits, and then pass the Aid Token to another table without gaining any benefits or having a chance to boost the token.

Reporting: If the PCs prevent the orcs from stealing five or more armfuls of loot, they have successfully overcome this encounter. Report one success to the Overseer GM.

F. The High Ground

High on the mountainside, a tall peak creates a natural vantage point for archers.

The orcs and their allies have established a strong position 30 feet above the PC’s path. The winding trail leading to the peak counts as difficult terrain when ascending, and creatures further up the trail gain a high ground advantage in melee. Climbing the slopes requires an Easy Climb check.

Creatures: Orcs and their allies attack with ranged weapons from above, attempting to slow down the PCs before fighting in melee. These orcs shout orders and threats like “Push them down the hill!” and “Wait until Gutrattle gets ahold of you!”

G. Orc Leadership

If the PCs are looking for an extra challenge, they can try to take on the leaders of the orc army in an attempt to demoralize the troops. This uses the same Flip-Mat: Desert Ruins map and creature placement as area D on page 23.

The stony remains of a ruined edifice provide shelter from the hot winds. Rocks on a stone table hold down a crude map of the valley.

The orcs had been using the sheltered section of the ruins as a temporary command area. Unless each PC succeeds at a Hard Stealth check, an orc scout spots them approaching and warns his superiors. If the PCs do sneak up on the leaders, ignore the Before Combat entries in those creatures’ respective Tactics sections and allow the PCs to begin the encounter as little as 30 feet away from the enemies.

Creatures: As the PCs approach, the orc leadership gets ready for battle. The orc with the highest Challenge Rating greets the PCs with a toothy smile and declares, “I’ve been waiting for strong opponents. Your deaths will give me honor among the Black Suns.” Among the orcs is Mugek, the son of Krun Thuul, chief of the Black Suns tribe. Mugek is especially eager to impress his father by securing a great victory.

CONCLUDING PART 2

Once 90 minutes has elapsed, the Overseer GM should read the following to conclude Part 2.

As the last orcs perish or flee, the Twinhorns reassemble the caravan and gather the fallen. Night begins to fall, swallowing up the road and leaving the caravan stranded in a pool of torchlight. Medda stands atop the new lead wagon, blood dripping from her breastplate. She holds Ivvora’s hilt aloft and shouts, “Twinhorns! We are only two days from the stone circle and have two days until the winter solstice.” A nimbus of light begins to radiate from the hilt, illuminating the entire valley in bright light. “Abandon the wagons and carry with you what you need to survive. We must reach the circle in time, or darkness will consume us.”

Successes: Tally the number of successes (including special successes) the House reported during Part 2. The number of successes determines which of three possible conditions takes effect for the duration of Part 3. The details of these conditions appear in the Twinhorn Allies sidebar on page 31.
If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or less than $2 \times$ the number of tables, many of the Twinhorn Kellids perished in the ambush, leaving few to help the PCs during Part 3. Read the following aloud.

The convoy may have repelled the orcs, but at an immense cost. More than half of the Twinhorn warriors lie dead, felled by orc axes and giants’ boulders. Should the Pathfinders encounter more trouble, few of their Kellid companions will be able to lend assistance.

Table GMs: the Devastated Army condition is in effect for the rest of the adventure.

If the House has reported a number of successes that is more than $2 \times$ the number of tables and less than $3 \times$ the number of tables, the Kellids suffered some casualties. Read the following aloud.

Bodies litter the valley, but fortunately most of them belong to orcs. Even so, the Twinhorns have lost many of their warriors and may not be at their full fighting strength for whatever lies ahead.

Table GMs: the Bloodied Convoy condition is in effect for the rest of the adventure.

If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or greater than $3 \times$ the number of tables, the Kellids survived the ambush with few casualties, leaving them in good condition to assist the PCs during Part 3. Read the following aloud.

The cheer that answers Medda’s orders is strong, for it is thanks to the Pathfinders’ courage that only a few Twinhorn warriors perished during the attack. As the expedition sets about gathering what supplies it needs, it does so confident that it’s at full strength.

Table GMs: the Twinhorn Champions condition is in effect for the rest of the adventure.

With that, the Overseer GM should announce that Part 2 of the adventure has concluded and that PCs will begin the next chapter fully rested. This is a good time to provide a short break before beginning Part 3.
PART 3: WINTER SOLSTICE

To begin Part 3, the Overseer GM should read or paraphrase the following.

“My Pathfinder allies, thank you for bringing us much needed support,” says Medda, the Twinhorn following’s spiritual leader. She stands beside Anok, her phantom and constant companion. “After the orc ambush sapped our supplies and strength, we pushed north to our winter home. We are only hours away from the stone circle and our encampment—if we are going to make it there by midnight, we need to press on. Once there, we will use Ivvora’s hilt to perform our time-honored ritual and keep evil from our lands.” Medda produces the small hilt of a broken weapon with only a fragment of its black metal blade remaining. “Let us move. There are dangers in these ancient woods: orc raiders, bears that topple trees, and worse. Stay in groups and don’t get lost.”

The PCs have 60 minutes to rally the Twinhorn following and fight their way through the undead in area H before moving on to any of the encounters in area I. In the final 30 minutes, the PCs encounter Eshimka’s lieutenants and can close the planar rift in area J.

In later versions of The Solstice Scar, Part 3 might serve as the beginning or middle of the adventure. In these circumstances, the PCs use the entire 90-minute duration to battle their way through the encounters. They must still begin with area H before moving on to area I. They can choose to take on a greater challenge by traveling to area J to challenge Eshimka’s lieutenants.

Table GM Instructions

During Part 3, the PCs save a group of Twinhorn Kellids before fighting back against Eshimka’s undead invaders, convincing the Twinhorn leadership to unite against the undead, or containing the threat posed by other planar threats escaping through the nightwalker’s rift.

Final Encounter: In Version A of this adventure, the encounter in area J is only accessible (and is an obligatory finale) during the last 30 minutes of Part 3. When the Overseer GM announces that the final encounter area is accessible, endeavor to transition the group to that encounter within the next several minutes. It’s okay to wrap up an ongoing encounter with some quick narrative in order to give the group plenty of time with the final encounter.

When the Overseer GM announces this transition, she will also note that the Deepening Shadows, Uncertain Opportunity, or Bolstering Light condition is in effect. The effects of these conditions appear in the Counting Successes sidebar on page 38.

In other versions of The Solstice Scar in which Part 3 is the beginning or middle of the adventure, the encounter in area J is an optional, more challenging encounter that the PCs can experience anytime after concluding the encounter in area H. In this case, the Overseer GM will not make any special announcements at the start of the encounter.

Reporting: Each encounter has a Reporting entry at the very end that notes how to handle successes. For most encounters the PCs successfully overcome (through combat, negotiation, or otherwise), the Table GM should send a Runner to report one success to the Overseer GM. If the PCs defeat the encounter in area J, the Table GM should send a Runner to report a special success to the Overseer GM. If the PCs successfully conclude the Seeking Aid encounter, the Table GM should send a Runner to report either one or two diplomatic successes to the Overseer GM.

Portal Closed: This condition triggers and affects the entire House once enough tables have reported special successes. All undead creatures must immediately succeed at an Easy Will save or become dazed for 1 round. Additionally, the undead each take a –1 penalty to AC and on attack rolls, saving throws, skill checks, and ability checks.

Twinhorn Comrades: This condition triggers and affects the entire House once enough tables have reported diplomatic successes. When this occurs, the next successful melee or ranged attack made by each PC before the end of the adventure automatically gains the benefits of the boosted Allied Offensive aid token effect.

Overseer GM Instructions

During Part 3, the Overseer GM tallies reported successes, special successes, and diplomatic successes. The Overseer GM is also responsible for making announcements to the House, tracking time, and concluding the adventure.
After 60 Minutes: Once the House has had 60 minutes in which to explore areas H and I, the Overseer GM should make the following announcement to indicate the area J is now accessible.

Medda rides by, calling above the din of the raging battle, “The path is clear—we can reach the valley that golds the stone circle. Let us band together and stop the undead tide. I am concerned that some of the foul creatures had the name ‘Eshimka’ on their rotting lips. We must stand together and use all of our power to close this black portal before it’s too late!”

Additionally, immediately read aloud one of the following three entries based on the number of successes the House has reported (see the Successes section below).

Successes: The number of successes reported affects what extra condition is in effect after 60 minutes when the House can enter area J (whether a group reports one or two diplomatic successes for the Seeking Aid encounter, treat this as one success for this purpose). If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or less than \(2 \times \) the number of tables, the Deepening Shadows condition is in play. If the House has reported a number of successes between \(2 \times \) the number of tables and \(3 \times \) the number of tables, the Uncertain Opportunity condition is in play. If the House has reported a number of successes equal to or greater than \(3 \times \) the number of tables, the Bolstering Light condition is in play.

For the Deepening Shadows condition, read the following aloud.

Despite the Society’s best efforts, the undead forces seem to grow in power, fed by a grim shadow that conceals even the stars.

For the Uncertain Opportunity condition, read the following aloud.

Fighting side-by-side, the Twinhorn following and Pathfinders have carved a path to the stone circle. This affords only a brief opening to stop the undead army, and the fighting will be difficult.

For the Bolstering Light condition, read the following aloud.

The undead forces begin to fall back, scattered by the Society’s ferocity. As if Vildeis herself approved, Pathfinders’ battle wounds glow with light that pushes back the darkness.

Table GMs, the Bolstering Light condition is in effect, and the way to area J is now open. Please move to that encounter area swiftly.

Special Successes: Runners report special successes following the successful completion of the encounter in area J, and these contribute to activating the Portal Closed condition; note that this condition does not apply in Version A of The Solstice Scar, so special successes are merely an indicator of how many tables have concluded the final encounter. Once the House has reported a number of special successes equal to one-sixth the number of tables, rounded up, read the following aloud.

Brilliant light shines from the stone circle, penetrating the thick forest and illuminating the entire valley. Just as quickly as it appeared, it vanishes, leaving the undead looking feeble. Table GMs, the Portal Closed effect is in play.

Diplomatic Successes: Runners report either one or two diplomatic successes whenever a table successfully concludes the Seeking Aid encounter, and these contribute to activating the Twinhorn Comrades condition. Once the House has reported a number of diplomatic successes equal to one-third the number of tables, rounded up, read the following aloud.

The air fills with the sound of Kellid battle cries as dozens of Twinhorn warriors join the fight. Table GMs, the Twinhorn Allies effect is in play.

Concluding Part 3: This part should end after 90 minutes. See the Concluding Part 3 section on page 40.

H. BLOOD ON THE SNOW

The PCs should complete this encounter first before continuing to area I.

Once the PCs approach the Twinhorn following encampment, they see evidence of a bloody battle and the encampment is under attack. The Overseer GM should start Part 3 by reading the following.

As the Kellids and Pathfinders reach the top of the hill next to the Twinhorn encampment, they notice splashes of blood and the occasional corpse dotting the landscape. Medda raises her voice, calling, “My brethren, our families are under attack! Secure the camp and drive back any who oppose you. Pathfinder allies, join us in defense of our home!” The landscape opens into a burned hillside where blackened trees stand like lifeless sentinels. A crude blockade shields the entrance to a natural cavern.

When the first waves of undead attacked, the Twinhorn members remaining in the encampment struggled to fight them off. Some retreated to this nearby cave and constructed a haphazard barricade. They’ve been able to hold off the undead horde for several hours, but the barricade is about to collapse.

Creatures: The undead creatures were trying to break the barricade down, but they turn their attention to the PCs at their arrival.

Development: The Twinhorn Kellids are thankful for the PCs’ assistance and direct them to the main encampment to talk with their leaders. They also mention that creatures have been pouring from a portal at the stone circle since nightfall and ask that the PCs hold back the tide of undead and find a way to close the portal. Once the PCs reach the camp (area I), they can meet with the Twinhorn elders (the Seeking Aid encounter) or fend off the undead that are attacking the settlement (the Spirits of the Past and Planar Opportunists encounters). In any version of The Solstice Scar other than Version A, the PCs can also travel to area J to confront Eshimka’s lieutenants.

Reporting: If the PCs successfully overcome this encounter, report one success to the Overseer GM.

I. TWINHORN CAMP

The Twinhorn following has numerous tents made of thick animal hides (hardness 2, 10 hit points), and they have creates a partial palisade around the camp’s core to provide a windbreak and make the site easier to defend. The palisade is 10 feet tall.

During the combat encounters here, the enemies can attack from any direction, though ideally they should approach from a direction that allows them to begin the encounter at least 60 feet away from the PCs. If the PCs are at risk of failing a combat encounter catastrophically, they can flee successfully so long as they can reach the edge of the map; don’t report a success, but do move to a different encounter once the PCs have finished healing their wounds.

Seeking Aid

This encounter takes place inside the large tent near the center of the camp.

The thick hide walls of this large tent muffle the sounds of battle outside. Iron spikes pin down an enormous map in the center of the tent. Wooden carvings of warriors and monsters lie strewn about the map, marking the location of fighting warriors and the encroaching undead.

By the time Medda entered the tent, the other two council elders had just agreed to retreat. They intend to escape with their surviving warriors, abandoning their winter home and the pledge they made to Ivvora. When the PCs arrive, Medda has been arguing with them for several minutes, demanding that they stay and fight for their home and traditions. The PCs are able to influence the outcome of this debate by swaying the opinions of the other two council members. This is a greatly simplified version of the influence subsystem (Pathfinder RPG Ultimate Intrigue 102) that does not require the printed source to run.

To persuade a council member, the PCs must perform a number of successful skill checks; the types of skills...

that function in this way appear in the Influence entry of the NPC’s stat block below, and the number of successful checks needed appears immediately below that. A PC can also try to uncover important information about an NPC by succeeding at one of the skill checks listed in the Discovery entry, which informs the PCs what that NPC’s advantages and biases are. Knowing these advantages and biases helps the PCs gain cumulative bonuses and avoid penalties on checks to influence the NPCs.

Each PC receives three opportunities to perform a skill check to influence a council member or discover an advantage for influencing a council member. Have the PCs describe or roleplay each skill check before rolling it. Particularly persuasive strategies can earn a PC up to +4 bonus on a check. A PC can instead aid the attempt of another PC, using one of her own three allotted skill checks. Biases may affect some PCs’ skill checks with a bonus or penalty, based on the temperament of the elder. Succeeding at a skill check listed under the Influence section grants the PCs a success. Once the PCs have acquired the number of successes needed, that council member has decided to stay and fight.

For 4 Players: For a group of four PCs, grant each PC one additional opportunity to attempt a skill check during this encounter.

Creatures: The three council members are Medda Spiritbearer, Kragr Bloodhand, and Jala the Patient. If the House earned the Tragic Death condition in Part 1, Medda is distrustful of the Pathfinders. This increases her successes needed to 3 and increases the check DCs of all skills to influence her to Hard.

MEDDA SPIRITBEARER
NG female human spiritualist

DESCRIPTION

Background When she was 11 years old, Medda accepted the responsibility of sheltering Anok’s phantom, as had her mother before her. She had been presumed to be a boy up until that point, and accepting the heavy family burden helped her find the inner strength to acknowledge her true self. Her revelation pleased the elder council, for “evening’s daughters”—daughters who revealed themselves later than most—were presumed in Kelhid culture to possess incredible willpower and tenacity. Once bound to Ivora’s hilt and Anok, Medda developed considerable psychic magic, which she honed through many adventures and spiritual trials in the 15 years since. Medda is a wise counselor, resourceful healer, and time-tested leader for the Twinhorn following.

Appearance Medda has a lithe build, especially by Kelhid standards, and wears her auburn hair tied in a tight braid. She wears a breastplate over her furs and carries a longspear into battle. As a devout follower of Vildeis, she wears a bloody bandage as a symbol of her own sacrifice, giving some of her own life force to sustain the phantom of Anok. Small scars featuring celestial runes peak from beneath her clothing.

Personality Medda is trusting and seeks peace, but she’s not afraid to fight against evil at any cost.

Biases Medda has a bias toward outward followers of good-aligned deities (+2) and against those who are violent for glory or personal gain (-2).

INFLUENCE

Influence Easy Knowledge (religion) or Perform (oratory)

Successes Needed 2 checks

Discovery Easy Knowledge (religion) or Sense Motive

Advantage Medda’s bloody bandage and celestial rune scars symbolize her devotion to Vildeis, the empyreal lord known as the Cardinal Martyr. She selflessly fights any encroaching evil.

Special If the PCs support Medda directly, she becomes inspired and even more fervent. The DC to influence the other council members decreases by one step (Hard to Average and Average to Easy).

KRAGR BLOODHAND
CN middle-aged male human barbarian

DESCRIPTION

Background As the primary hunter of the Twinhorns, Kragr is most comfortable outdoors. He has had experience in skirmishes with other followings and orcs from the south, but he usually fights his foes directly. He has wanted to abandon the traditions of Vildeis and Ivora for years, feeling there are better places to spend winters with more game and fewer orcs. He sees no value in remaining.

Appearance This massive Kelhid stands a head taller than most humans and wears a dire polar bear cloak from a bear he personally wrestled, pinned, and strangled during a year he spent traveling the Crown of the World. The many scars on his body suggest a life of physical conflict and perseverance.

Personality Kragr is short tempered and impatient. He sees no value in the Twinhorns’ annual visit to this area.

Biases Kragr admires physically powerful creatures with a combined Strength and Constitution score above 30 (+2); he looks down on weak creatures whose combined Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution are 36 or lower (-2).

INFLUENCE

Influence Average Intimidate; Hard Diplomacy or Bluff

Successes Needed 4 checks

Discovery Average Knowledge (local) or Sense Motive

Advantage Kragr doesn’t like people to think he’s a coward. Insinuating that he’s afraid motivates him to look strong (+4), but outright calling him a coward makes him angry (-2).

JALA THE PATIENT
LN venerable female human ranger

DESCRIPTION

Background Jala was once the hero of the following, able to bring down a stag at 500 feet in a gale. Now she leads the following as the eldest surviving member, relying on her hunter’s instincts to guide her words instead of her arrows.

Appearance Jala’s age may have wrinkled her skin and clouded her vision, but she still wears her leather armor and longbow proudly. Regular exercise has kept her body strong, despite her old age.

Personality Jala is often silent, waiting for the right moment to speak. When she does, her words are direct and to the point.

Biases Jala prefers to hear reasoned arguments (+2) and dislikes impassioned pleas that depend on emotional manipulation (–2).

Influence

Influence Average Knowledge (nature) or Profession (soldier); Hard Knowledge (religion)

Successes Needed 3 checks

Discovery Average Knowledge (nature) or Sense Motive

Advantage Jala still retains her hunting instincts, silently evaluating the situation and acting only when most effective. She reacts well to facts (+2), but not to emotional appeals (–2).

Development: Once each PC has attempted three skill checks, the council members vote. Each NPC for whom the PCs attained enough successes votes in favor of staying to fight. So long as the House did not earn the Tragic Death condition, Medda votes to remain.

Reporting: If at least two members of the council vote to stay and fight, report one diplomatic success to the Overseer GM. If the vote is unanimously to stay and fight, report two diplomatic successes.

Spirits of the Past

A stream of glowing mist winds its way through the trees as the air takes on a sudden chill.

Creatures: Eshimka has gathered hundreds of undead creatures into an army, and the waves of negative energy that pulse from the rift in area J have also caused many long-dead crusaders and cultists to haunt this wilderness. The undead travel toward the camp and kill whoever they find. Remember that although incorporeal undead could play extended games of cat-and-mouse by constantly hiding in solid objects, those tactics are not appropriate for this adventure’s fast-paced encounters.

J. VOICE OF THE SHADOW

In Version A of The Solstice Scar, do not begin this encounter until directed to do so by the Overseer GM. In other versions, the PCs can travel to this area once they've concluded the encounter in area H.

The clearing on the riverbank features a circle of standing stones with a large stone altar at its center. A shadowy tear floats above the altar, so dark that what little light shines from the stars seems to become trapped inside. Eight large tendrils of inky darkness coil around the menhirs as if keeping the stones in a stranglehold. Other tendrils lick out from the shadowy rift as if tasting the air.

Eshimka has torn open a jagged wound between the planes, creating an unstable gate where Ivorra defeated the nightwalker. If a PC travels through the gate, he reaches a liminal space between the Negative Energy Plane and the Shadow Plane; exploring this is beyond the scope of this adventure, though the PC takes 1 negative level each round he remains inside. The tear is quickly getting larger, growing by almost an inch per minute. After sending through its vanguard, Eshimka sent its lieutenants to organize the undead rabble and prepare for the nightwalker's return.

Creatures: One or more of Eshimka's lieutenants guards the rift, killing any living creature that dares to approach. During combat, the intelligent undead describe the horrible ways that Eshimka will torture the PCs' souls on the nightstalker's return.

Hazard: Shadowy tentacles lash out at any living creature that enters the stone circle, as the spell black tentacles with a caster level equal to the table's Average Party Level (APL). In Subtier 1–2, the tentacles only grapple creatures (dealing no damage), and in Subtier 3–4, they deal only 1d6 points of damage. The tentacles act to maintain the grapple effect on initiative count 10 each round. This effect does not target nor impede undead creatures in any way. Furthermore, any creature that ends its turn within the stone circle is subject to an amount of negative energy damage equal to 1d6 × half the party's APL (minimum 1d6; Easy Will save for half).
J. Voice of the Shadow

Pathfinder Flip-Mat: Bigger Forest
The negative energy both harms living creatures and heals undead creatures. Any positive energy that affects any part of the hazard’s area—such as from the channel energy class feature or cure spell—and that deals damage equal to at least double the APL suppresses this hazard for 1 round.

Development: With the lieutenants slain, the PCs can attempt to close the rift by performing a sealing ritual and succeeding at a total of three Average skill checks for one or more of the following skills: Knowledge (arcana, planes or religion), Linguistics, Perform (oratory), Spellcraft, or Use Magic Device. Each PC can attempt a single skill check. Expending an ability that uses positive energy—such as casting a spell with the healing descriptor or using a cleric’s channel positive energy class feature—grants a bonus on a single check equal to the level of the spell; for channeled positive energy, the bonus is equal to the number of d6s rolled. If a PC’s result would meet the Hard skill check DC, the check instead earns two successes. A PC who completed a similar ritual in Pathfinder Society Scenario #8–07: From the Tome of Righteous Repose gains a +4 circumstance bonus on these checks.

If the PCs succeed, the rift starts to close slowly. If more than 15 minutes remain in Part 3, the table GM should have the PCs help defeat other threats near the Twinhorn encampment (such as in area I).

Reporting: If the PCs successfully overcome this encounter, report one special success to the Overseer GM.

CONCLUDING PART 3

After about 90 minutes, the Overseer GM should read the following aloud to conclude Part 3—and the event as a whole if this is the final part of the adventure.

As Medda and Anok join the group of Pathfinders around the stone circle, she assists them with the binding ritual. Medda thrusts Ivvora’s hilt into the portal, calling on Vildeis for aid. The shadow rift shrinks and closes, releasing a massive shock wave that knocks the Pathfinders, the Twinhorn warriors, and Medda to the ground. A field of dark, rippling energy remains, suspended above the stone altar. As Medda reaches out to pick up Ivvora’s hilt—the already broken blade now spider-webbed with new cracks—a supernatural silence descends. Only the telepathic rage of some unseen menace cuts through the quiet. “You dare to shut me out?” it rages. “I see you, but I do not see her. Where is the dwarf woman, Ivvora, who fought me so long ago? Has her mortal body failed at last? Has the realm of the living at last lost its protector? Know this: when the long shadows reach out again, I will grasp them and claw my way back into your world to see your flesh devoured by my children.”

Sound returns to the Realm of the Mammoth Lords, and Medda cautiously stands. “It seems that Eshimka still lives and has even left this foul scar on our world,” she declares. “If we are to believe its promises, the fiend will attack on the next winter solstice. If we are to survive, we must be ready. Nearly a millennium ago, Ivvora held the key to defeating Eshimka. By following her legends and discovering her fate, we may harness the same holy power that banished this fiend—and together end the beast entirely.

“When we set out, it would be the privilege of this following to have the Pathfinders at our side. But that is a trial for another day. Tonight, at last, we rest.”

If this is the final Part, the Overseer GM should close the event, thank the Table GMs for their hard work, and thank the players for their support of Pathfinder Society Roleplaying Guild Organized Play campaign. Provide the GMs and players with instructions for submitting reporting sheets and exiting the event.

Otherwise, the Overseer GM should begin Part 4.

Success Conditions

For participating in this adventure, each PC earns 2 Prestige Points.
Pathfinders,

My apologies for interrupting your feast, but Nigel Aldain has just informed me that there is trouble at the Blakros Museum. Once your bitter laughter has subsided, let us continue.

Nigel says it can’t wait until morning. We don’t want to jeopardize our relationship with the Blakros Family, so we will do what we can to aid him. Please gather your gear and meet in the main hall within Skyreach. I will give more instructions then.

SQ conditional sentience

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Conditional Sentience (Su) A wax golem constructed to look like a humanoid (whether a particular individual or not) has a small chance of gaining sentience and genuinely believing it is a living creature. Each week, such a wax golem has a cumulative 1% chance of becoming sentient (on the second week the chance is 2%, the third week 3%, and so on), to a maximum of 5%. If it does attain sentience, the golem gains an Intelligence score of 10, retroactive skill points, feats dependent on its Hit Dice, and 1 class level with the potential to gain more. If it was crafted to resemble a specific individual, it also gains a +10 racial bonus on Disguise checks made to impersonate that individual. A sentient wax golem ventures into the world and tries to live a life similar to that of the person (or type of person) it resembles. However, if the sentient wax golem ever encounters the person it is modeled after, it attempts to stealthily kill that person and take her place. The only way for a sentient wax golem to lose its sentience is either to take an amount of fire damage equal to half its hit points (which melts its features away) or to be destroyed.

Immunity to Magic (Ex) A wax golem is immune to any spell or spell-like ability that allows spell resistance, with the exception of spells and spell-like abilities that have the fire descriptor. In addition, certain spells and effects function differently against the creature, as noted below.

• A magical attack that deals fire damage slows a wax golem (as the slow spell) for 2d6 rounds (no save). In addition, for 3 rounds after taking fire damage, every time a wax golem uses its slam attack, it deals an additional 1d4 points of fire damage due to its molten wax.

• A magical attack that deals cold damage breaks any slow effect on the golem and heals 1 point of damage for each 3 points of damage the attack would otherwise deal. If the amount of healing would cause the golem to exceed its full normal hit points, it gains any excess as temporary hit points. A wax golem gains no saving throw against cold effects.

Phase Lurch (Su) An ectoplasmic creature has the ability to pass through walls or material obstacles. To use this ability, the ectoplasmic creature must begin and end its turn outside of whatever wall or obstacle it's moving through. An ectoplasmic creature cannot move through corporeal creatures with this ability, and its movement speed is halved while moving through a wall or obstacle. Speed Surge (Ex) Three times per day as a swift action, a shadow drake may draw on its draconic heritage for a boost of strength and speed to take an additional move action in that round.
Stygian Breath (Su) As a standard action, a shadow drake can exhale a ball of black liquid that explodes into a cloud of frigid black mist. This attack has a range of 60 feet and deals 2d6 points of cold damage (Reflex DC 14 half) to all creatures within a 5-foot-radius spread. The mist snuffs out light sources in the area effect, extinguishing nonmagical light sources and dispelling light spells of 1st level or lower. Beard (Ex) If a bearded devil hits a single opponent with both claw attacks, it also lashes at the same target with its spiky, filthy beard. The victim takes 1d8+2 points of damage and must succeed on a DC 17 Fortitude save or contract devil chills.

The save DC is Constitution-based. Devil Chills: Disease—Injury; save Fort DC 17; onset 1d4 days; frequency 1/day; effect 1d4 Str damage; cure 3 consecutive saves.

Infernal Wound (Su) The damage a bearded devil deals with its glaive inflicts persistent wounds that cause 2 points of bleed damage. Bleed caused from an infernal wound is particularly difficult to stanch—a DC 17 Heal check stops the damage, and any attempt to heal a creature suffering from an infernal wound must succeed on a DC 16 caster level check or the spell does not function. Success indicates the healing works normally and stops all bleed effects on the victim. The infernal wounds caused by a bearded devil are a supernatural ability of the devil, not of the weapon.

SQ repair clockwork, swift reactions, winding

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Net (Ex) As a standard action, a clockwork servant can launch a net from its shoulder. The launcher itself can contain up to five nets—loading a folded net into the launcher is a standard action. Some clockwork servants are outfitted with masterwork or even magic nets, although the clockwork servant presented here is armed with standard nets.

Repair Clockwork (Ex) Clockwork servants are adept at repairing other clockwork constructs. As a standard action that does not provoke an attack of opportunity, a clockwork servant can repair damage done to either itself or an adjacent clockwork creature, healing 1d10 points of damage to the target.

Morale Medda surrenders when reduced to half her hit points.

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Catch and Detain (Ex) Living runes always deal nonlethal damage with their swarm attack to creatures that are vulnerable to nonlethal damage. If a creature is knocked unconscious, it takes no damage from a living rune’s swarm attack.
Trap Control (Su) Living runes can be attuned to a single magical trap. As a move action, they can change the position of the magical trap up to 20 feet, but the trigger area must be on a solid surface. Nearby creatures may notice the trap move with a successful DC 20 Perception check. As a standard action, living runes may trigger the trap.

Mark Quarry (Su) A crawling hand is assigned a quarry by anointing the hand with a drop of the intended quarry’s blood. If the hand has no current quarry, it automatically gains the next creature it damages as its quarry. Once attuned to a target, it becomes aware of the target’s location as if under the effect of a continuous locate creature spell. The hand gains a +1 bonus on all attack rolls, damage rolls, and skill checks made to seek out and destroy the marked quarry. The mark quarry ability lasts until the quarry or the hand is slain.

Pus Burst (Su) When damaged by a piercing or slashing melee weapon, a spray of vile pus strikes the attacker unless the attacker makes a DC 15 Reflex save. Weapons that provide reach protect the attacker completely from a pus burst. Creatures struck by pus become nauseated for 1d3 rounds and take 2d6 points of negative energy damage. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Phase Lurch (Su) An ectoplasmic creature has the ability to pass through walls or material obstacles. To use this ability, the ectoplasmic creature must begin and end its turn outside of whatever wall or obstacle it’s moving through. An ectoplasmic creature cannot move through corporeal creatures with this ability, and its movement speed is halved while moving through a wall or obstacle. Any surface it moves through is coated with a thin, silvery mucus that lingers for 1 minute.

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Haunted (Su) An animated owlbear mascot is haunted by a spirit. It takes damage from positive energy as if it were an undead creature and can be detected by detect undead.
Reinforced (Ex) Due to its barding and the powerful psychic resonance that powers its body, an animated owlbear mascot gains 15 additional hit points, a +6 armor bonus to AC, and a +3 bonus on all saving throws. These are incorporated into its statistics above.

SQ efficient winding, proficient, standby, swift reactions

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Efficient Winding (Ex) A clockwork soldier can function for 2 days per Hit Die every time it is wound.
Latch (Ex) Clockwork soldiers have specially designed hands that easily grasp and lock onto weapons and objects. A soldier can attempt to disarm or grapple as a standard action without provoking an attack of opportunity, and it receives a +2 bonus on disarm checks. In addition, it receives a +2 bonus to CMD against attempts to disarm it.
Proficient (Ex) A clockwork soldier is proficient with all simple and martial weapons.
Standby (Ex) A clockwork soldier can place itself on standby as a standard action. While on standby, a clockwork soldier cannot move or take any actions. It remains aware of its surroundings but takes a –4 penalty on Perception checks. Time spent on standby does not count against the soldier’s wind-down duration. A clockwork soldier can exit standby as a swift action—if it does so to initiate combat, it gains a +4 racial bonus on its Initiative check.

SQ spell link
SPECIAL ABILITIES
Dweomercat Leap (Su) When a dweomercat is targeted by a spell or within the area of effect of a spell, it can, as a swift action, choose to teleport to a square adjacent to the spell’s caster, effectively appearing mid-leap and aimed toward the caster. This ability takes effect regardless of whether or not the spell overcomes the dweomercat's spell resistance. If it chooses, the dweomercat can immediately make a full attack against the spell's caster as though pouncing. Using this ability does not provoke an attack of opportunity. If there is no safe space adjacent to the caster—or if the dweomercat chooses—the dweomercat can forgo using this ability.

Spell Link (Su) When a dweomercat is targeted by a spell or within the area of effect of a spell, it can, as a swift action, forgo its dweomer leap ability to gain an effect related to the school of the spell targeting it. This effect activates before the dweomercat is affected by the spell targeting it and regardless of whether or not the spell overcomes its spell resistance.
Each power lasts for 1 minute per level of the spell targeting the dweomercat, until the dweomercat uses this ability again, or until the dweomercat chooses to dismiss the effect as a free action, whichever duration is shortest. This ability does not prevent the spell affecting the dweomercat from taking effect; it only provides an additional benefit.

Abjuration: Gains acid, cold, fire, electricity, or sonic resistance equal to 2 per spell level.

Conjuration: Gains a deflection bonus to AC equal to +1 for every 5 levels of the spell.

Divination: Gains the effects of detect chaos, evil, good, or law.

Enchantment: Grants the effects of heroism.

Evocation: Inflicts an amount of damage equal to the spell's level upon the spell's caster.

Illusion: Grants the effects of invisibility. This effect ends as per the spell.

Necromancy: Gains the effects of false life, as if cast by the opposing spell's caster.

Transmutation: Gains an enhancement bonus on its natural weapons equal to +1 for every 5 levels of the spell.

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Catch and Detain (Ex) Living runes always deal nonlethal damage with their swarm attack to creatures that are vulnerable to nonlethal damage. If a creature is knocked unconscious, it takes no damage from a living rune’s swarm attack.

Trap Control (Su) Living runes can be attuned to a single magical trap. As a move action, they can change the position of the magical trap up to 30 feet, but the trigger area must be on a solid surface. Nearby creatures may notice the trap move with a successful DC 20 Perception check. As a standard action, living runes may trigger the trap.

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Construct Form Despite being true devils, levalochs possess a number of immunities common to constructs, including immunity to ability damage, ability drain, death effects, death from massive damage, disease, energy drain, exhaustion, fatigue, necromancy effects, nonlethal damage, paralysis, sleep effects, and stunning. Upon being reduced to 0 hit points, they are immediately destroyed.
Hellstrider (Su) A levaloch is not impeded by difficult terrain, and can move or charge through such squares as normal. It can also cross areas covered with dangerous impediments (such as caltrops or thorns) without being damaged or hindered. The creature’s legs are immune to acid and cold, allowing it to cross even rivers of acid without being damaged or hindered as long as the hazard is fewer than 4 feet deep.
   This ability does not protect a levaloch against magical hindrances like black tentacles, web, or similar spells.
Merciless Blow (Su) Any trident attack a levaloch makes against entangled creatures deals an extra 2d6 points of damage.
Phalanx (Ex) All devils adjacent to a levaloch gain a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and to AC.
Stability (Ex) A levaloch gains a +4 bonus to CMD against bull rush and trip.

Weaknesses exiled

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Exiled (Ex) The symbols of an exiled shade’s former organization still hold power over its restless spirit. An exiled shade that can see such a symbol is sickened for as long as the symbol remains visible. Additionally, if a shade is directly confronted with such a symbol (which requires a standard action) it must succeed at a DC 16 Will save or become dazed for 1 round. If the shade succeeds, it can no longer be dazed in this manner for 24 hours, but remains sickened while in the symbol’s presence. If this symbol is a holy symbol and is used in the act of channeling energy, the exiled shade does not gain its channel resistance against the effect. The symbol must be something the exiled shade’s organization used to identify its members while the shade was alive, such as a noble crest, a knightly banner, or a holy icon.

Intelligence Damage (Su) An exiled shade’s touch clouds the target’s mind with anger and resentment, dealing 1d6 points of Intelligence damage. This is an emotion-based, mind-affecting, negative energy effect.

Rage Thrall (Su) If an exiled shade deals a cumulative amount of Intelligence damage greater than or equal to a humanoid target’s actual Intelligence score, the affected creature does not fall unconscious as normal. Instead, the target ceases to take penalties from its Intelligence damage and falls under the control of the exiled shade, as per dominate person. Creatures so dominated cannot attempt new saving throws to escape the shade’s control until their Intelligence damage no longer equals or exceeds their actual Intelligence score. An exiled shade can control only a single creature in this manner. If an exiled shade deals enough Intelligence damage to a second creature to activate this ability, the first creature is relinquished from its control (though it might immediately fall unconscious if its Intelligence damage equals or exceeds its actual Intelligence score).

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Agent of Despair (Su) A creature that takes damage from a fallen’s attacks must succeed at a DC 19 Will save or take a –4 penalty on saving throws against fear. If a creature that has immunity to fear fails this saving throw, its immunity is temporarily suppressed. This effect lasts as long as a creature still has damage taken from a fallen’s attacks. This is a curse effect. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Curse of the Unburied (Su) Once per day, a fallen can curse the remains and perform a funeral for its fallen’s remains and perform a funeral for it. The target must succeed at a DC 19 Will save or take a –2 penalty to each of its ability scores. Each day, the target can attempt a new saving throw; success keeps the target from accruing an additional –2 penalty to each of its ability scores. No ability score can be reduced below 1 by this effect. The ability score penalties are removed immediately upon completing funeral rites for the fallen. The target does not need to complete the rites personally, but it is responsible for seeing that they’re carried out. The save DC is Charisma-based. Phantom Armaments (Su) A fallen’s weapons and armor are formed of force, allowing the fallen to make physical attacks and wear protective armor. This gear cannot be disarmed or removed from the fallen. Arrows fired from the fallen’s longbow vanish after dealing damage to their target. A fallen gains a bonus on attack rolls with melee weapons and on combat maneuver checks equal to its Charisma modifier. Rejuvenation (Su) A fallen is tied to the place where it died. A fallen is permanently destroyed and its soul is released when funeral rites lasting at least 1 minute are performed at the site where it perished or over its earthly remains. Otherwise, a fallen reforms 2d4 days after its destruction at the site where it first died. Touch of the Grave (Su) All of a fallen’s melee and ranged attacks deal 2d6 additional points of negative energy damage to living targets (this does not heal undead targets struck).

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Compel Courage (Ex) An ostiarius can inspire courage as a 5th-level bard using bardic performance, granting a +2 morale bonus on saving throws against charm and fear effects and a +2 competence bonus on attack and weapon damage rolls. This ability has a range of 50 feet and affects those creatures the ostiarius chooses who also willingly accept the benefits of the effect (no saving throw required). The ostiarius’s performance compels creatures to perform at dangerous extremes. Any living non-outsider that benefits from this ability takes 1 point of bleed damage. A creature that accepts these benefits for multiple consecutive rounds gains additional points of bleed damage that stack with one another (to a maximum of 5). This is an audible, mind-affecting effect and can be countered by a bard’s countersong class feature.

Shadow Traveler (Ex) When an ostiarius uses plane shift to travel to the Plane of Shadow, it arrives at its intended destination with complete accuracy. When an ostiarius uses shadow walk, it moves at 100 miles per hour.

Unnerving Gaze (Ex) A creature that succumbs to an ostiarius’s unnerving gaze becomes sickened for 1d4 rounds. This is a mind-affecting fear effect. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Exiled (Ex) The symbols of an exiled shade’s former organization still hold power over its restless spirit. An exiled shade that can see such a symbol is sickened for as long as the symbol remains visible. Additionally, if a shade is directly confronted with such a symbol (which requires a standard action) it must succeed at a DC 16 Will save or become dazed for 1 round. If the shade succeeds, it can no longer be dazed in this manner for 24 hours, but remains sickened while in the symbol’s presence. If this symbol is a holy symbol and is used in the act of channeling energy, the exiled shade does not gain its channel resistance against the effect. The symbol must be something the exiled shade’s organization used to identify its members while the shade was alive, such as a noble crest, a knightly banner, or a holy icon.

Intelligence Damage (Su) An exiled shade’s touch clouds the target’s mind with anger and resentment, dealing 1d6 points of Intelligence damage. This is an emotion-based, mind-affecting, negative energy effect.

Rage Thrall (Su) If an exiled shade deals a cumulative amount of Intelligence damage greater than or equal to a humanoid target’s actual Intelligence score, the affected creature does not fall unconscious as normal. Instead, the target ceases to take penalties from its Intelligence damage and falls under the control of the exiled shade, as per dominate person. Creatures so dominated cannot attempt new saving throws to escape the shade’s control until their Intelligence damage no longer equals or exceeds their actual Intelligence score. An exiled shade can control only a single creature in this manner. If an exiled shade deals enough Intelligence damage to a second creature to activate this ability, the first creature is relinquished from its control (though it might immediately fall unconscious if its Intelligence damage equals or exceeds its actual Intelligence score).

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Create Spawn (Su) Most humanoids slain by a ragewight rise as cairn wights (though with chaotic evil alignments) in 1d4 rounds. However, humanoids with 6 or more Hit Dice and the rage class feature instead become ragewights, retaining the rage powers they had in life. Such spawn are under the command of their creator until its death, at which point they become free-willed undead.

Savage Fury (Ex) A ragewight can trigger a savage fury as a free action. It can use this fury for 24 rounds each day. These Entropic Flesh (Ex) A sceaduinar’s natural attacks can strike incorporeal creatures as if they were ghost touch weapons. All of a sceaduinar’s natural attacks deal +1d6 points of negative energy damage to the target. This energy does not heal creatures healed by inflict spells.

Void Child (Ex) Sceaduinars are immune to effects that target souls (such as trap the soul) or require knowledge of a creature’s identity (such as scrying). When one is slain, it cannot be restored to life by magic save by a miracle or wish, or by divine intervention.

Special Abilities
Haunted (Su) An animated owlbear mascot is haunted by a spirit. It takes damage from positive energy as if it were an undead creature and can be detected by detect undead.
Reinforced (Ex) Due to its barding and the powerful psychic resonance that powers its body, an animated owlbear mascot gains 15 additional hit points, a +6 armor bonus to AC, and a +3 bonus on all saving throws. These are incorporated into its statistics above.

Death Burst (Ex) When a clockwork golem is reduced to 0 or fewer hit points, it explodes in a shower of razor-sharp gears and debris. All creatures within a 10-foot burst take 12d6 points of slashing damage—a DC 18 Reflex save results in half damage. The save DC is Constitution-based.
Grind (Ex) A clockwork golem deals an additional 2d10+15 points of slashing damage when it makes a successful grapple check as razor-sharp gears and blades emerge from its body to grind and slice its foe.
Immunity to Magic (Ex) A clockwork golem is immune to any spell or spell-like ability that allows spell resistance. In addition, certain spells and effects function differently against a clockwork golem, as noted below.
• A grease spell cast on the golem causes it to move quickly for 1d6 rounds, as if under the effects of haste.
• A rusting grasp spell deals damage to a clockwork golem normally, and makes the golem staggered for 1d6 rounds (no save).

Wall of Gears (Su) As a standard action, a clockwork golem can fold into a whirling wall of grinding gears measuring 10 feet by 10 feet or 5 feet by 20 feet. Anyone passing through the wall takes 1d6 points of slashing damage. If the wall appears in a creature’s space, that creature can attempt a DC 18 Reflex save to leap to one side and avoid the damage entirely. The clockwork golem can take no actions while in this form except to resume its normal form as a move action. A clockwork golem’s AC and immunities remain the same while it is in this form.

SQ spell link

Special Abilities
Change Shape (Su) Twice per day as a swift action, a dweomerlion can increase its size to Large. This function as enlarge person, and it lasts for 10 minutes or until the dweomerlion ends the effect as a swift action. While Large, a dweomerlion’s reach is 5 feet.

Dweomer Leap (Su) When a dweomerlion is targeted by a spell or within the area of effect of a spell, it can, as a swift action, choose to teleport to a square adjacent to the spell’s caster, effectively appearing mid-leap and aimed toward the caster. This ability takes effect regardless of whether or not the spell overcomes the dweomerlion’s spell resistance. If it chooses, the dweomerlion can immediately make a full attack against the spell’s caster as though pouncing. Using this ability does not provoke an attack of opportunity. If there is no safe space adjacent to the caster—or if the dweomerlion chooses—the dweomerlion can forgo using this ability.

Spell Link (Su) When a dweomerlion is targeted by a spell or within the area of effect of a spell, it can, as a swift action, forgo its dweomer leap ability to gain an effect related to the school of the spell targeting it. This effect activates before the dweomerlion is affected by the spell targeting it and regardless of whether or not the spell overcomes its spell resistance. Each power lasts for 1 minute per level of the spell targeting the dweomerlion, until the dweomerlion uses this ability again, or until the dweomerlion chooses to dismiss the effect as a free action, whichever duration is shortest. This ability does not prevent the spell affecting the dweomerlion from taking effect; it only provides an additional benefit.

Abjuration: Gains acid, cold, fire, electricity, or sonic resistance equal to 2 per spell level.

Conjuration: Gains a deflection bonus to AC equal to +1 for every 5 levels of the spell.

Divination: Gains the effects of detect chaos, evil, good, or law.

Enchantment: Grants the effects of heroism.

Evocation: Inflicts an amount of damage equal to the spell’s level upon the spell’s caster.

Illusion: Grants the effects of invisibility. This effect ends as per the spell.

Necromancy: Gains the effects of false life, as if cast by the opposing spell’s caster.

Transmutation: Gains an enhancement bonus on its natural weapons equal to +1 for every 5 levels of the spell.

TACTICS

Before Combat The witch doctor casts false life and mage armor on herself before combat.

During Combat Before enemies reach the orcs, the witch doctor casts cloudkill in their midst. She then casts fly on herself so she can cast additional spells and uses hexes from above her enemies’ melee reach. The witch doctor typically spends a couple of rounds weakening her strongest foes using enervation and ray of exhaustion, then begins blasting with evocation spells.

Base Statistics Without false life and mage armor, the witch doctor’s statistics are AC 13, touch 13, flat-footed 11; hp 79.

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Disease (Su) A body snatcher’s tentacles inflict a fast-acting disease that causes the victim to experience terrifying premonitions and visions of the world’s imminent destruction. In the later stages, the victim perceives a fictitious cataclysm that ends with the victim’s vital systems ceasing entirely, so certain is the body that it has died. A creature dies if this Wisdom damage equals or exceeds its actual Wisdom score. The save DC is Charisma-based.
Tentacle Bind (Su) A body snatcher may use its own tentacles to tie up a pinned target, detaching them from its body. When it does this, the body snatcher takes 1 point of damage per HD (typically 16) and cannot make tentacle attacks until its tentacles regrow at the beginning of its next turn. Creatures pinned by this ability cannot make sound, as if affected by the spell silence.

LE Medium undead (augmented humanoid, human)

Human vampire monk (hungry ghost monk) 11 (Pathfinder RPG Monster Codex 242)

SPECIAL ABILITIES
Devour Soul (Su) By making a touch attack as a standard action, a devourer can deal 12d6+18 points of damage as if using a slay living spell. A DC 22 Fortitude save reduces this damage to 3d6+18. The soul of a creature slain by this attack becomes trapped within the devourer’s chest. The creature cannot be brought back to life until the devourer’s destruction (or a spell deflection—see below) releases its soul. A devourer can hold only one soul at a time. The trapped essence provides a devourer with 5 essence points for each Hit Die possessed by the soul. A devourer must expend essence points when it uses a spell-like ability equal to the spell’s level (for sake of ease, spell levels for its spell-like abilities are included in its stats in superscript). At the start of an encounter, a devourer generally has 3d4+3 essence points available. The trapped essence gains one permanent negative level for every 5 points of essence drained—these negative levels remain if the creature is brought back to life (but they do not stack with any negative levels imparted by being brought back to life). A soul that is completely consumed may only be restored to life by a miracle or wish. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Spell Deflection (Su) If any of the following spells are cast at the devourer and overcome its spell resistance, they instead affect a devoured soul: banishment, chaos hammer, confusion, crushing despair, detect thoughts, dispel evil, dominate person, fear, geas/quest, holy word, hypnotism, imprisonment, magic jar, maze, suggestion, trap the soul, or any form of charm or compulsion. While none of these effects harms the soul, the caster makes a DC 25 caster level check to control any form of charm or compulsion. Without these effects harms the soul, the caster makes a DC 25 caster level check when a spell is deflected—success indicates that the trapped soul is released from its prison and the creature whose body it belonged to can now be restored to life as normal.

SPECIAL ABILITIES

Agent of Despair (Su) A creature that takes damage from a fallen’s attacks must succeed at a DC 19 Will save or take a –4 penalty on saving throws against fear. If a creature that has immunity to fear fails this saving throw, its immunity is temporarily suppressed. This effect lasts as long as a creature still has damage taken from a fallen’s attacks. This is a curse effect. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Curse of the Unburied (Su) Once per day, a fallen can curse a good-aligned cleric, paladin, or warpriest within 30 feet whose deity is opposed to the creation of undead to locate the fallen’s remains and perform a funeral for it. The target must succeed at a DC 19 Will save or take a –2 penalty to each of its ability scores. Each day, the target can attempt a new saving throw; success keeps the target from accruing an additional –2 penalty to each of its ability scores. No ability score can be reduced below 1 by this effect. The ability score penalties are removed immediately upon completing funeral rites for the fallen. The target does not need to complete the rites personally, but it is responsible for seeing that they’re carried out. The save DC is Charisma-based.

Phantom Armaments (Su) A fallen’s weapons and armor are formed of force, allowing the fallen to make physical attacks and wear protective armor. This gear cannot be disarmed or removed from the fallen. Arrows fired from the fallen’s longbow vanish after dealing damage to their target. A fallen gains a bonus on attack rolls with melee weapons and on combat maneuver checks equal to its Charisma modifier.

Rejuvenation (Su) A fallen is tied to the place where it died. A fallen is permanently destroyed and its soul is released when funeral rites lasting at least 1 minute are performed at the site where it perished or over its earthly remains. Otherwise, a fallen reforms 2d4 days after its destruction at the site where it first died.

Touch of the Grave (Su) All of a fallen’s melee and ranged attacks deal 2d6 additional points of negative energy damage to living targets (this does not heal any undead targets struck).

Special Abilities

Create Spawn (Su) Most humanoids slain by a ragewight rise as cairn wights (though with chaotic evil alignments) in 1d4 rounds. However, humanoids with 6 or more Hit Dice and the rage class feature instead become ragewights, retaining the rage powers they had in life. Such spawn are under the command of their creator until its death, at which point they become free-willed undead.

Savage Fury (Ex) A ragewight can trigger a savage fury as a free action. It can use this fury for 24 rounds each day. These rounds don’t need to be consecutive. The ragewight gains a +6 profane bonus to its Strength and Charisma and a +3 profane bonus on Will saves when using this fury. When a ragewight ends its fury, it is staggered for 1d4 rounds and can’t resume its fury during this time. This ability otherwise functions as the greater rage barbarian class feature, treating the ragewight’s racial Hit Dice as its barbarian level for the purposes of rage and any rage powers.

Special Abilities

Energy Drain (Su) A shadow giant inflicts its energy drain attack no more than once per round via its first successful melee attack (with its slam attack or with any melee weapon it wields) or via a thrown rock.

Militant (Ex) A shadow giant is proficient with all simple weapons, all martial weapons, and one exotic weapon of its choice. Most shadow giants choose proficiency with the spiked chain.

Shadow Cloak (Sp) Because of the shadow giant’s connection with the Shadow Plane, as a move action in any illumination other than direct sunlight, a shadow giant can cloak itself in moving shadows, gaining the benefits of blur for 1d6+6 rounds (CL 13th for the purposes of dispel magic and similar effects). It can use this ability three times per day.

This Chronicle Sheet Grants Access to the Following:

- Belkzen Veteran: You have crossed the Hold of Belkzen, negotiated with the orc representatives, and clashed with opportunistic raiders. You can spend 2 Prestige Points to learn Orc as a bonus language. In addition, you can check the box that precedes this boon to gain the benefits of the orc ferocity half-orc racial trait for 1 round. If you already have this racial trait and activate that ability, you can check the box to act normally as though you did not have the disabled condition for 1 round.

- Martyr's Shard: The paladin Ivvora wielded a powerful dagger in service to her angelic patron, Vildeis. In helping recover and restore the hilt, you are able to begin imbuing a facsimile of the blade to combat evil on your own terms. As a free action, you can check the box that precedes this boon to grant one weapon you wield a +1 enhancement bonus (does not stack with other enhancement bonuses) and the ability to overcome damage reduction and regeneration as a cold iron, good-aligned weapon for 1 minute. Future Martyr’s Shard boons may unlock additional benefits.

  If you are a paladin or lawful good character capable of casting divine spells, the +1 enhancement bonus stacks with the weapon’s existing enhancement bonus, if any (but not with similar additional enhancements, such as that granted by a paladin's divine bond ability). Furthermore, you can check the box that precedes this boon to instead cast dispel magic as a spell-like ability using your character level as the spell's caster level.

  Any character with this boon can choose to purchase an avenging dagger (120,604 gp; functions as a holy avenger but is a dagger rather than a longsword) as though her effective Fame were 10 higher. If this character has earned two, three, or all four Martyr’s Shard boons, reduce the cost of an avenging dagger to 110,604 gp, 100,604 gp, or 90,604 gp respectively.

- Scarred Champion: Vildeis grants the strength to endure pain to strike down evil, and in escorting Ivora’s hilt back to the Twinhorn following, you now carry a spark of that empyreal lord’s divine resilience. When you would fail a saving throw against the spell or spell-like ability of an undead creature, you can check the box that precedes this boon to roll 1d6 and increase the saving throw result by that amount. If the bonus is enough to turn the failure into a success, the saving throw succeeds. This near-death experience leaves you with a hand-sized scar somewhere on your body—a reminder of Vildeis’s assistance.
